INCREASE OF
$406,083,350

Borrowings by New York Stock Exchange Members Reach Record Total of $7,071,221,275.

U. S. STEEL AND RAIL LIST BOOM

New Peak Prices Recorded in Market Despite 15 Per Cent Call Money Rate Throughout Day.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 2.—Call money stayed at 15 per cent all day today but the stock market disregarded the high rate and indulged in a sharp rally which lifted nearly two score issues, including most of the representative rails, to new high records for the year. Some profit-taking developed in the public utilities, several of which dropped a point or two. Oils, which have been rather sluggish for several weeks, participated in the advance, with Atlantic Refining, to the fore.

Member Loans $7,071,221,275.
The New York Stock Exchange reported today that total borrowings by members against security collateral reached a new high record of $7,071,221,275 at the end of June, a gain of $406,083,350 from May 31. On June 30, 1928, the total was $6,665,137,925.

New York banks joined in supplying sufficient funds to keep the rate from going above 15 per cent. In the "outside market" the rate dropped to 14 per cent. Heavy demand for currency are expected to keep the rate from working much lower. In the week, but there was a widespread belief in Wall Street that the call money stringency was temporary and due to the combination of mid-year payments, expiration of stock rights and July 4th currency demands.

General Electric Feature.
General Electric was the spectacular individual feature, making 24 points to a new high record at 252 and closing with a gain of one point to 253. Other leaders of the top. Allis Chalmers, United Aircraft, Case Threshing Machine, Westinghouse Electric, A. M. Byers, Eastman Kodak, Perma-Met, and the U. S. Steel Common was in brisk demand, moving up 4 1/2 points to a new high at 19 1/2, and closing within a fraction of the top.

The day's transactions, 4,592,790 shares, were the largest since the sharp break of May 22, and the largest for a rising market since May 1. The Associated Press price index of 50 leading industrials rose to unprecedented level at 223.8, as compared to the previous high record of 223.4 reached on May 4. The index of 20 rails, which reached new high ground yesterday, rose nearly 3/4 points to still another peak.

Some Coppers Heavy.
Revival of activity and strength in the oils was said to be based on expectations of some unusually favorable second quarter earnings reports. Opening of the New York State Attorney-General's investigation into the recent power and light mergers accounted for some of the selling of those stocks.

Some of the copper shares, particularly Anaconda and Greene Cananea, showed signs of heaviness.

Commodity prices improved. Wheat advanced 1/2 cents a bushel, and corn advanced about half cent a bushel. Cotton closed unchanged to 50 cents a bale high.

Japanese yen advanced another quarter of a cent to 44 1/2 cents, but most of the European exchanges drifted lower.

Beijing in the rails assumed the leadership of the industrial list with a spectacular rise to new record levels for all time. Taking lead against the "rights" which expired about a week ago, steel was selling at the equivalent of better than 200, which incidentally stood on the equivalent of around 250 on the stock on the basis of capitalization prior to the 40 per cent stock dividend payment.

$1,287,426 REFUND
TO MELLON COMPANY

Treasury Total in Tax Cases $106,569,893 in Last Six Months of 1928.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 2.—A report from the joint committee on Internal Revenue Taxation today showed that from June 1, 1928, to Dec. 31, 1928, tax refunds plus interest were allowed by the Treasury in cases over $75,000 each to total $106,569,893.

Among the larger refunds shown by the report was one in July, 1928, of $1,287,426 for over-assessments of property of the Aluminum Co. of America, in which Secretary Mellon is a stockholder, and its subsidiaries at Pittsburgh, Pa. The report said the principal cause for the refund was "inventory adjustment." The original assessment was $5,078,361 and the amount finally collected was $6,765,544.

DR. PAUL A. LEWIS
MARTYR TO STUDY
OF YELLOW FEVER

Member of Rockefeller Institute Dies of Disease Which Killed Colleague, Dr. Hideyo Noguchi.

WAS IN INFECTED
CITY OF BRAZIL

Research Pathologist Had Also Helped in Combating Tuberculosis and Infantile Paralysis.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, July 2.—Dr. Paul A. Lewis, research pathologist associated with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, died last Sunday at the age of 59 in Bahia, Brazil, of yellow fever, while engaged in a study of that disease, it was learned yesterday.

Like the late Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, a colleague in the Rockefeller Institute, who died under identical circumstances a year ago, he was a martyr to the attempt to find a more efficient way of preventing the dread fever. He had gone to Bahia, where it is particularly prevalent, to study the effect of the South American variety of the yellow fever bacillus on both man and monkey.

Dr. Lewis was among the most eminent research bacteriologists in the country. In 1916 he was summoned to New York by the health department as one of a commission to fight the infantile paralysis then raging in the city. At that time he was professor of pathology in the University of Pennsylvania and head of the laboratories of the Phipps Institute.

In 1925 he was called with a group of distinguished pathologists to the Research Committee of the National Tuberculosis Association, who began in that year to wage a war against the "white plague" which has since served to reduce the mortality rate to a considerable extent. He is described as a pioneer in the therapy of tuberculosis.

He was educated in the University of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin College of Physicians and Surgeons, and received his M. D. diploma from the University of Pennsylvania in 1904. From 1908 to 1910 he was an associate in pathology in the Rockefeller Institute in Princeton, N. J. He was a commander in the United States Naval Reserve from 1917 to 1921.

Dr. Lewis is survived by his wife and two children.

MILE STRETCH OF OCEAN BED
RISES AFTER EARTHQUAKES

Huge Cavity Appears on Mainland Opposite Ridge in Sea at Karama, N. Z.

By the Associated Press.
WELLINGTON, N. Z., July 2.—The ocean bed at the white cliffs of Karama is reported to have risen nearly 100 feet for a distance of about a mile since the recent earthquakes.

The width of this stretch varied, but was about 500 yards on an average. Opposite this rise in the ocean bed a huge cavity appeared on the mainland. It was approximately 1/2 mile deep with an area of hundreds of square yards. The land adjoining was badly torn up. Karama is on the west coast of the South Island.

FRENCH ARE CONCERNED OVER
DULLNESS OF TOURIST SEASON

Repeal of Landings and Sailing Taxes Considered as Means to Attract More Visitors.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, July 2.—The summer tourist season has been such a disappointment thus far that it promises to be even less satisfactory than that of last winter. Government traffic officials, hotel men and tourist agencies are discussing means of remedying the situation.

Abolition of the embarkation and debarkation taxes, repeal of luxury taxes and the raising of 20,000,000 francs ($300,000) as a fund for propaganda throughout the world and especially in the United States are some of the remedies that are being considered.

LEGGE ACCEPTS
CHAIRMANSHIP OF FARM BOARD

International Harvester Co., President Gives Up $100,000 Job to Take Hoover Appointment.

C. C. TEAGUE ALSO AGREES TO SERVE

But Three More Positions Remain Open—James C. Stone of Kentucky to Be Vice Chairman.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 2.—Alexander Legge of Chicago and C. C. Teague of California have accepted appointments to the Federal Farm Board. Legge will be chairman of the board for the first year and James C. Stone of Kentucky will be vice chairman.

President Hoover expressed satisfaction today with the acceptance, saying that both men made great sacrifices to serve the Government. Legge, he said, had taken the place in the face of the fact that it reduced his salary from $100,000 to $12,000 a year, which was an evidence of his desire to be of service to the farmer. Legge is president of the International Harvester Co.

Seven or eight years ago, after his promotion to the presidency of the board of directors of the Harvester company decided to double his salary, knowing that Legge, by modern standards, was not a wealthy man. They were somewhat surprised to have him agree to the increase, the principal reason appearing to be that he didn't want it and didn't need it.

Faced with this refusal, the Harvester company heads set the money they had intended to award him aside, and let it accumulate until the total had reached about $100,000. Then their president's wife died, and he discovered that she had a small and somewhat charitable relief enterprise which she had been long conducting out of her own funds, assisting girl clerks and stenographers of the Harvester company in the city.

It was suggested that this work might be perpetuated in her memory by use of the salary increase. Legge had refused, and the accumulation of $100,000 went to that purpose.

The announcement of Legge's acceptance was accompanied by a list of agricultural organizations and individuals who endorsed him.

These included Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, who also endorsed the appointment of Stone.

No endorsements were given out in connection with the Legge appointment. It was explained that Legge was the only appointee so far who had not been specifically proposed by farm organizations.

In this case, however, it was said, numerous farm organizations were asked whether they favored the appointment of a member experienced in the field of general business, and that when the President suggested that Legge be appointed this capacity they were in agreement as to the advisability of this action.

Three other appointments to the board are still open. C. B. Den Williams of Oklahoma, having accepted, W. S. Moscrop of Lake Elmo, Minn., is said to have been offered a place.

DEPUTIES' GROUP FAVORS DEBT
ACCORD WITH RESERVATION

French Foreign Affairs Committee Votes for Ratification of Mellon-Berenger Pact.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, July 2.—The Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies by a vote of 15 to 6 today recommended ratification of the Mellon-Berenger debt settlement with a reservation not yet specified introduced in the bill.

The finance committee of the chamber also decided to recommend to Parliament ratification of the Mellon-Berenger accord with reservations to be made in annexes to the bill. The vote was 14 against 19 and 11 not voting.

Evacuation of the second zone of the Rhineland previous to Jan. 10, 1930, fixed by the treaty of Versailles, was brought before the Finance Committee by the Chamber today when it met to study the report on the Young plan.

The Socialist Deputies, Vincent Auriol and Pierre Renaudel, forced the issue and demanded that the Government make known its intention regarding earlier evacuation of the Rhineland before considering ratification of the Young plan.

President Poincare declined to outline the Government's evacuation policy before he was informed of the committee's desire in the matter.

HARDINGE DENIES
ANN LIVINGSTON'S
STORY IN DETAIL

Says He Thought She Was a Nice Girl When He Met Her, Then Found She Was Avaricious.

ASSERTS SHE WANTED
HIS ENTIRE ESTATE

Divorcee Was Never Good Natured Unless She Could Buy Something, Millionaire Testifies.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 2.—Step by step, Franklin S. Hardinge, 62-year-old defendant in a $250,000 breach of promise action, went over the story of Ann Livingston today and denied the passionate love-making she attributed to him. Interspersed in the denials, the gray-haired oil burner manufacturer attacked the reputation and character of the 29-year-old divorcee from Tulsa, Ok.

She told him, he testified, that she so greatly admired Charles Nux, married St. Louisian, that she was anxious to bear a child by him. "She said it was because he wrote poetry, loved music and was generally smart," he said.

Hardinge denied vehemently that he ever attempted intimacy with Miss Livingston, as she charged. "The bulk of Hardinge's testimony concerned his attitude toward Miss Livingston, hers toward him and conversations they had about various members of his family. His attitude toward her in Tulsa, shortly after they had met, he said, was one of a man getting acquainted."

"I thought she was a very good," he testified. "I thought she was a nice girl. I believed what she told me and relied upon it."

Relating a conversation about Helen, Hardinge's daughter, he testified that Ann told him she would not tolerate Helen in the house after they were married.

In another about Josephine Brand, his housekeeper, he related, Ann made a similar demand. "I told her," he testified, "that if the house wasn't big enough for two women I would make some provision for Josephine so she could live elsewhere. But Ann didn't want me to do that. She said if I had any money to spend on Josephine I could give it to her (Ann)."

He denied ever telling Ann that he lived with his housekeeper as his wife.

Hardinge's Son in Court.

Hardinge identified a bill for $500 from H. O. Blund, Tulsa attorney, for legal services to Miss Livingston consisting of drawing up a prenuptial agreement for the defendant's son, 29 years old and 6 feet tall, was shown to the jury.

In the midst of Hardinge's testimony, right after he termed Miss Livingston avaricious and grasping, his attorney had the son stand up.

"Did you ever see this young man before?" the attorney asked. Hardinge gulped, but did not answer.

"He's your son, isn't he?" the attorney asked.

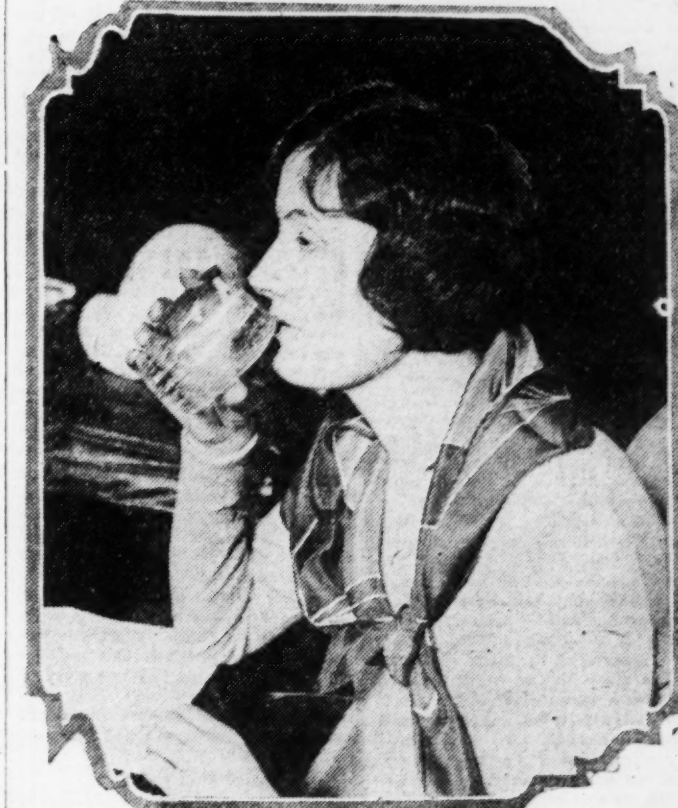

"That's all," said Russian as the younger Hardinge walked through the crowd to leave the courtroom. Hardinge continued his story of unrequited love on the stand. He said Miss Livingston wanted his whole estate, that she was not satisfied with $100,000 bequest in his will, that during December 1927, she grew more and more avaricious and that she never was good-natured unless she was buying something.

"In January she was irritable

POPE PIUS' EXIT FROM VATICAN
WILL TAKE PLACE ON JULY 25

Preparations Indicate He May Say Mass for Pilgrims in St. Peter's Square.

By the Associated Press.
VATICAN CITY, July 2.—Pope Pius will make the first exit of any pontiff from Vatican territory since 1870 on July 25, the feast of St. James the Apostle. He will bear the Eucharist in St. Peter's Square on the occasion of the international pilgrimage of seminarians and preparations for the event indicate that he may say mass for the pilgrims in the open air.

The Pope has ordered a temporary high altar to be erected outside the Basilica with an overhanging baldachin. This was taken as an indication that he might celebrate the mass as the structure will be more elaborate than would be required for a simple benediction.

CORNERSTONE OF $750,000
SHAKESPEARE THEATER LAID

Full Masonic Ritual Used in Ceremony at Memorial Playhouse.

By the Associated Press.
STRATFORD-ON-AVON, England, July 2.—Within a few hundred yards of the spot where William Shakespeare was born, the corner of a $750,000 theater in his memory was laid today. The ceremony was performed with a full Masonic ritual, Lord Amphil, acting grand master of England, officiating at the ceremony.

Miss Elizabeth Scott, the architect of the theater, presented a trowel to Lord Amphil bearing the Shakespeare arms, the arms of the town of Stratford-on-Avon, and the Coronet of Lord Amphil. The theater, which is expected will be completed next winter, will accommodate 1000 persons, and plans for it have been under constant supervision of men active in the English theater. The Shakespeare Summer Festival opened at the temporary memorial theater last night with a performance of Hamlet.

The girls will receive the same wages as did the stewards. The Santa Barbara will sail Thursday for the west coast of South America.

SAYS ROCKEFELLER HAD TARIFF
CUT TO SAVE ON CHURCH GIFT

Bell Manufacturer Testifies Oil Magnate Proposed Reduction on Carillon.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 2.—The assertion that John D. Rockefeller Sr., is responsible for the reduction of the tariff on carillons from 40 to 20 per cent as provided in the tariff bill passed by the House was made today by a Senate subcommittee yesterday by W. R. Menely, bell manufacturer of Troy, N. Y.

Menely said Rockefeller's interest was based on a desire to effect a saving on the price of a carillon for the new Park Avenue Baptist Church in New York. His own company could not make such a carillon as was ordered for less than $22,000. Menely said, and Rockefeller was unwilling to pay that much, although later, the carillon was bought in England for $25,000.

LABOR PARTY'S
PROGRAM IS SET FORTH IN SPEECH
FROM THE THRONE

Pledge Made to Name Commission to Investigate Legislation Regarding Sale and Supply of Liquor

TO SEEK REDUCTION OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Speech Read by Lord Chancellor Because of Inability of the Sovereign to Be Present.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, July 2.—The program of the Labor Government in Great Britain was presented to Parliament at noon today with the reading by Lord Chancellor Sankey at a combined session of the Lords and Commons of King George's speech from the throne.

General opinion was that the speech had little that was radically Socialistic and, save in a few instances, might have been the program of any recent Conservative or Liberal ministry.

Among promises made were that there would be effort toward disarmament, diplomatic recognition of Soviet Russia and resumption of trade relations with Soviet Russia, reduction of unemployment, and investigation of industrial drawbacks.

The first sentence of the speech, after its introduction, was that "my relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly." The address then mentioned favorable conclusions of a reparations agreement and preparation for a second conference of Governments which should conclude its work with arranging for evacuation of the Rhineland.

Comment on Disarmament.
It said of disarmament: "Conversations have commenced with the Ambassador of the United States of America on the subject of naval disarmament, in consequence of which it is the earnest hope of my Government to insure, in co-operation with my Governments in the Dominions, the Government of India and the Government of the World Council, the reduction of armaments throughout the world."

Announcement followed of intention to adhere to the optional clause of the World Council statute, the action to be taken in collaboration with the Governments of the Dominions.

One of the most important announcements was that the MacDonald Government intends to tackle the liquor problem, at least by investigation, and has decided to appoint a commission at an early date to examine the whole field of legislation relating to sale and supply of intoxicating liquor.

Another important announcement was that the Government had in mind legislation looking to electoral representation reform in the light of the experiences of the recent election. All three parties have sought this, each avowing a different electoral system would work to its advantage.

Opened by Commission.
Because of the inability of the King to be present, Parliament was opened "by commission," as was the case during the reign of Queen Victoria.

Five Lords—Kintore, Southborough, Stanhope and Atkin and Lord Chancellor Sankey—were empowered to officiate, representing King George on a bench in front of the throne from which the King usually reads the speech which his Ministers write for him.

The King's absence did not deprive the meeting of public interest, unusual attention having centered for weeks on the program of Prime Minister MacDonald and his Labor Ministry.

Baldwin Answers King's Speech.
Stanley Baldwin, the former Conservative Prime Minister, speaking in the debate on the reply to the speech from the throne, declared that he and his friends would offer

GIBRALTAR GIVES NOISY GREETING TO RESCUED FLYERS

Streets of Fortress City Crowded When British Ship Lands With Four Spanish Aviators.

GOVERNOR RECEIVES MAJ. FRANCO AND AIDS

Airmen, Saved After Week Adrift, Likely to Be Taken to Madrid by Train Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press. GIBRALTAR, July 2.—Bearing a story of quiet heroism and patience in the face of death, Maj. Ramon Franco and his three companions of their ill-starred trans-Atlantic flight attempt, landed at Gibraltar from the rescue ship, the British airplane carrier Eagle today, safe, sound and still able to laugh happily.

Along the streets and waterfronts in all directions were thousands of persons who had come to see the flyers and to cheer them on their deliverance after a week's floating in the Atlantic in the region of the Azores.

Crowds and demonstrations such as the military favored Gibraltar has never known greeted the four men. Traffic was stalled and newspaper men almost literally had to fight their way every foot through the streets, while launches in the harbor had difficulty in getting to and from the Eagle. All the British population of Gibraltar had turned out, and there were between 10,000 and 15,000 spectators who came from Spain.

Fortress City Crowded

When the Eagle slipped into the harbor, every narrow street of this picturesque British fortress town, built in the sides of the great granite rock jutting out toward Africa from the southern extremity of Spain, was jammed with British and civilian residents in tropical suits. British sailors, soldiers and marines, with here and there Moors from Africa in white turbans and long robes, while others wore fezzes and flowing crimson cloaks. British bobbies, reinforced by military police, lined the streets and the water front in an effort to keep traffic orderly.

The water front was packed with spectators, and all up the sides of the great granite rock of Gibraltar, where roads are cut into the mountain-like terraces, observers were lined. Palm trees lifted tufts of fronds against a brilliant blue sky as the blazing tropical sun increased in intensity. Finally the Eagle came into the harbor, one of the world's greatest naval bases.

Several Spanish planes from Morocco and British machines based at Gibraltar circled the harbor and soared over the Eagle and its passengers.

Governor Receives Flyers

Maj. Franco and his companions, Maj. Eduardo Gonzalez Gallarza, Capt. Julio Ruiz de Alda and Mechanic Pedro Madariaga, remained aboard the Eagle until almost 11 o'clock, when they came ashore in launches and proceeded to Government House, where they were formally received by Gov. Sir Alexander Godley and Rear Admiral Berwick Curtis, commanding the British Gibraltar naval force.

The aviators thanked the Governor and the Admiral for their rescue. Then, in automobiles, accompanied by Spanish officials, the flyers proceeded to the nearby Spanish towns of La Linea and Algeciras.

Thousands of spectators cheered and threw flowers as the men passed through the streets of Gibraltar, while big crowds also had gathered at La Linea and Algeciras, cheering and waving British and Spanish flags. The festivities continued all day.

Machine in Need of Repairs. It was expected that tomorrow the men would be taken by train to Madrid. Their machine, while not badly damaged, cannot be flown until it is repaired, which will be done at Gibraltar or on the Spanish side.

When the men first landed, four cruisers of the Italian navy, now on a Mediterranean trip, fired a salute. Italian officers had gone aboard the Eagle with the other naval officials to greet the rescued airmen.

The airmen called at Government House to pay their respects to the Governor, they said: "Naturally we shall fly again. The accident was nothing."

Capt. N. F. Laurence, commander of the Eagle, would not comment on the rescue, his only remark being, "We did our duty; nothing else."

It was understood here that the Spanish Government intends to award decorations to Capt. Laurence and to Lieut. R. A. Kilroy of the No. 402 flight, who first sighted the missing men.

LAST SIGNAL ROCKET FROM SPANISH FLYERS BROUGHT BRITISH VESSEL TO RESCUE

Watch Officer of H. M. S. Eagle Tells of Being Guided by Strange Light on Ocean.

By the Associated Press.

GIBRALTAR, July 2.—How he clung to a forlorn hope and followed a fantastic light gleam near the Azores Saturday morning to save the lives of the Spanish trans-Atlantic aviators was told by Lieut. R. A. Kilroy of H. M. S. Eagle upon his arrival here today.

Lieut. Kilroy, who is also attached to the Royal Flying Corps, was on watch before dawn Saturday morning of last week. The weather had been rough the day before and neither he nor his fellow officers thought the Dornier Wal plane of Maj. Ramon Franco still floated, but they continued to hope.

At 4 a. m. there was a queer beam from the surface of the sea far to the south of him. It might have been almost anything, but Lieut. Kilroy turned the Eagle about and in a few minutes was able to make out the plane with the four Spaniards aboard, waving and gesticulating to him.

Heavy Seas Battered Plane. Lieut. Kilroy was reticent but Maj. Franco was more voluble. He told how they sent out wireless messages after they came down southeast of the Azores. These gave their position, but apparently they were not received. Day after day they drifted with the wind. On their fifth and sixth days afloat, June 27 and 28, a heavy sea made them fear the end was near.

On the morning June 29, Maj. Gonzales Gallarza saw a vessel's lights, probably 20 miles away. The aviators flashed their own Bengal lights and sent up some rockets, then Spanish aviators began wondering if they were seen. They were overjoyed a little later to see the craft turn in their direction and steam rapidly toward them.

The flyers were taken aboard, and at 6 o'clock, two hours after they were sighted, their plane was lifted up by the Eagle's hoists and lodged on one of the decks. Kilroy said Franco and his three companions were exceedingly cheerful despite their danger.

Rescuers Clothe Aviators. The men received tea and cigarettes. They later joined in deck games, played cards with the British officers and were once entertained by a special concert. On feature of the trip was the daily reading of wireless messages from friends and well wishers. Grey flannel trousers and tweed coats from the civilian kits of the Eagle's officers were given to the flyers because their own clothes had been ruined during the bad weather.

Although they still had plenty of food aboard, the plane when rescued, their drinking water was running short and they had been running the water from the engine and radio tanks. They were visited aboard the seaplane by Lieut. Stevenson of the Eagle before they boarded the boat. He shook hands with them and they thanked him heartily.

Maj. Franco told the story of their landing early Saturday morning, June 22, just a week before they were picked up. He said conditions were bad on the journey with visibility greatly impaired by layers of clouds. There was dense fog over the Azores in which they could find no break. They knew they were over the islands but if they attempted to fly low and get their exact bearings they feared they would crash. Therefore they flew around until they were sure they were over the sea and then came down upon the water.

Their fuel was exhausted because of having flown so long through the fog. After landing on the water they saw no ships for more than six days.

Each night they used some of their signal rockets. They had shot the last one when the welcoming lights of the Eagle came into view. Then followed tense minutes with no more rockets to send, while they waited to learn if they had been seen, and finally came the huge aircraft "mother ship" to pick them up.

Shortage of water, cold, rough seas and a bitter sense of being at the mercy of the waves were the chief memories of Maj. Franco and his three companions, which will be done at Gibraltar or on the Spanish side.

"The landing was made perfectly on a quiet sea," he said. "My watch showed 9 o'clock in the morning. At first we did not know where we were, although we presumed we could not be so far from the Azores. Then the sea became rough and strong winds rushed the plane from one side to the other. We saw no vessel. We felt slightly cold. Naturally we were much disappointed. Thinking that we would soon see a boat, we settled ourselves and arranged to stand guard."

"We were not worried about eating, since we had food for 15 days. The first night we did not sleep, although at dawn I had a little sleep in the commanding cabin. On the morning of the twenty-third, the sea was rough and we feared for the plane. We even thought of dismounting the wings to avoid being buffeted by the waves. One of them dented the left wing and the man on watch became wet. We were then beginning to feel somewhat uneasy and nobody slept."

"We spent the night in the best manner we could. Toward morning the sea became calmer and we were able to rest a little. We did not eat much. We were hoping and hoping to see some ships. On the night of the 24th we began to light rockets, but our signals were sent up to no avail. Doubts began assailing us, because the realization dawned on us that we were at the mercy of the waves. We thought if we were outside the regular steamer lanes, we did not lose hope altogether."

Tanned by the Sun. "When topics of conversation became exhausted during our moments of leisure, when we were not busy with our food, we began to wonder what our families were thinking in Spain. During the day the sun bothered us some—you can see that we are tanned—but I can assure you that we began to suffer from hunger. Food and the water we got from the radiator to make up for our shortage of regular drinking water were sufficient."

"We spent our time scanning the horizon. There was one moment when we also despaired of ever being saved. We shall always remember the night of the 27th, which was terrible. The sea was so rough that the left wing and the right wing were being buffeted by the waves. The situation was almost desperate."

"As the plane was being tossed about, we closed all openings in order to keep the water from flooding us. The plane was a toy of the sea and we feared that it might not remain afloat very long. As our anxiety increased, we lighted Bengal lights, which were put out by the water."

Spirits of Flyers Lower. "On the morning of June 28 the sea became calmer, but we did not know where we were, even though we had the sun to guide us. Every spot on the sea seemed to us like a boat. But nothing came into sight. The day proceeded, comparatively well. Our spirits were low, but we never gave up hope."

"Early on the morning of the 29th Maj. Gallarza was on watch. Suddenly, with joy in his voice, he shouted that he thought he had seen lights. Then we all came out and sent up rockets. We spent an hour sending up these rockets. About 4 o'clock we thought we heard the noise of engines, but as it was still dark, we could not see anything. At 5 o'clock we saw smoke and then soon afterward this enormous ship, the Eagle, You can easily understand how great was our joy."

"It took an hour for us to get on board the Eagle. First of all, we thanked the commander and then we sent radios to our families. The rest of the story you already know."

Pacific's West Coast Line, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Union Pacific and the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis, were balloting on a question of striking.

The railroad officials said they understood the engineers sought to enforce their demands for a new contract to contain rules which the railroads claimed, would violate agreements now in effect with locomotive firemen. The engineers, the officials said, wanted a separate contract from the joint agreement made by engineers and firemen in Chicago in 1914. No wage question is involved.

I. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific, said that "the issues involved are matters of dispute between our engineers and firemen, in which the railroad has been unwillingly involved because of its compliance with their requests."

Members of the firemen's brotherhood, the railroad officials understood, have been instructed by their president, D. B. Robertson, to disregard the strike ballot.

RADIUM MONOPOLY CALLED FACTOR IN CANCER DEATHS

Dr. R. B. Moore of Purdue Asserts Price Is Held Up to $70,000 a Gram and Many Must Do Without It

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, July 2.—Existence of a monopoly which holds up the price of radium and thus keeps it from cancer victims is charged by Dr. Richard B. Moore, head of the science department of Purdue University and an expert on radium, in a letter quoted in the July number of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry issued today.

Dr. Harrison E. Howe, editor of the journal, in the same issue reports having heard that a company put into effect, for a time, a definite plan for restricting production in order to maintain the prices. Dispatches from London quote G. L. Lechin, director of the Union Miniere du Haut Katanga, as saying that the present radium price is too low and that his company contemplates raising it.

After calling attention to the retail price of $70,000 a gram now charged for radium in this country, Dr. Moore declares that "the actual costs to the company of producing radium are not known, but it should be very easy to obtain this rare element from 40 per cent ore for about $10,000 per gram, exclusive of mining costs, and overhead."

He adds: "Meanwhile thousands of cancer patients are dying every year who do not have the opportunity of being treated with radium, which at the present time is the only successful treatment of cancer outside of an operation. Larger production and a much wider distribution would mean an additional number of lives saved."

A Belgian group, according to Dr. Howe, controls practically the entire present radium output. It operates in the Belgian Congo. The mining section of the group, known as the Union Miniere du Haut Katanga, has New York offices. It is said that while the Belgian group has a large hold on the production of radium, this is true because it controls the world's best ore and can produce more cheaply than could mines which were operated in this country for a time.

A. J. JORDAN LEFT $200,000 Inventory of Retired Cutlery Manufacturer's Estate Filed.

Andrew J. Jordan, retired cutlery manufacturer, who died June 3, left an estate of about $200,000, it was learned today with the filing of an inventory in Probate Court. The inventory listed stocks, bonds and cash valued at $130,151.79, and included bank shares worth considerably more than their par value. Mr. Jordan left no will, his daughter, Miss Ettie A. Jordan, 4950 Lindell boulevard, being his only heir.

no factious opposition to the new Government. They intended, he said, to assist the king's Government in being carried on, but demanded a certain amount of self-control on both sides.

Premier MacDonald, speaking on the debate during the debate, said, "We shall go back on none of our contracts, but we shall in future arrangements, we shall that the just business interests of our nation cannot be sacrificed."

The Prime Minister dealt extensively with Great Britain's foreign relations, particularly those with America. His Government, he said, had two dominating concerns: first, the maintenance of peace and security by the cordial co-operation of the nations of the earth. Essential to the latter was better understanding with America.

"So far as America is concerned," continued the Premier, "the conversations that have been started are purely of a preliminary and exploratory character. All our past experience shows how necessary that is, if we are to succeed in an object which I am perfectly certain is common to America and ourselves."

Hopes for Better Relations. "The relations which have been growing up recently between the two countries, which I hope will be co-operators in all good causes of the world, have not been too happy. Both of us are aware of that, and are determined to do everything we can to change it. I can assure the House and the country that no time is being lost."

"The Kellogg pact has been signed by practically all the nations of the world, and the Government is anxious to build upon it. The signing of the optional clause embodied in the statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice."

"My Government is examining the conditions under which diplomatic relations with the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics may be resumed and are in communication with my Governments in the Dominions and the Government of India regarding the signing of that period of national anxiety was the unifying influence among all classes in the nation, which became one family in its sympathy with human suffering."

Remarks on King's Recovery. The address replying to the King's speech was moved by Henry Snell, Labor, who remarked on the general rejoicing over the King's recovery from his serious illness and how perhaps the chief outcome of that period of national anxiety was the unifying influence among all classes in the nation, which became one family in its sympathy with human suffering."

Snell said he was in the United States during some of the most anxious weeks of the King's illness. "The quick sympathy and anxiety of the American people were scarcely less marked than in our own land," he said.

The Labor member went on to deal sympathetically with the various phases of the speech. Regarding British relations with other nations, he believed that the speech raised very high hopes, and added that conversations already had begun with the United States.

"Nothing could be more welcome to the people of both countries," he said, "than that their genius should be pooled for the purpose of arriving at an abiding and blessed peace."

The enlightened people of both nations desired that "henceforth the broad Atlantic should no longer be a barrier, but a free ferry for the free people in a world of peace," he continued.

In the course of his remarks, former Premier Baldwin alluded to the desirability of closer personal intercourse between British and American statesmen, and he applauded Premier MacDonald's reported intention to pay a visit to the United States.

He was convinced that such a visit would be welcomed in America. He hoped that neither MacDonald nor the country would expect too much from one visit, and

Text of King George's Speech To New British Parliament

LONDON, July 2. KING GEORGE'S speech, as read to Parliament today, follows:

"While I regret that it is not possible to address you in person, I thank Almighty God that I can look forward with confidence to that complete restoration of health for which the prayers of my people throughout the Empire, with sympathy and affection which will call forth my deepest gratitude, were offered during the months of my long illness."

"My relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly. "The independent financial experts appointed to draw up proposals for complete and definite settlement of the German reparations problem have presented a unanimous report which is at present being considered by my Government in preparation for a conference of representatives of the Governments concerned."

"A settlement of this problem will enable occupying powers to proceed with evacuation of the Rhineland."

Negotiations With U. S. "Conversations have commenced with the Ambassador of the United States of America on the subject of naval disarmament in consequence of which it is the earnest hope of my Government to insure, in co-operation with the Governments of the Dominions, the Government in India, and the Governments of the foreign powers, an early reduction in armaments throughout the world."

"My Ministers decided that the time has come to investigate the whole field of legislation relating to sale and supply of intoxicating liquor and on their recommendation I propose to appoint an early date commissioners for this purpose."

Mention was made of the survey of national insurance and pension system and it was said a bill was being prepared to amend the widows' and orphan's and old age pension act. A measure also will be introduced to remedy the situation caused by the trades disputes and trade unions act of 1927.

The speech concluded: "At the recent general election an extended franchise placed in the hands of the whole of my people of adult years the grave responsibility of guarding the working of the law relating to constitutional democracy, and my Government proposes to institute an examination of experience of the election so that the working of the law relating to Parliamentary elections may be brought into conformity with new conditions."

Unemployment Problem. "Estimates for public service will be laid before you. It will be the foremost endeavor of my Ministers to deal with unemployment."

(At this point the address and the whole field of legislation prepared for improvement of transport, stimulation of depressed export trade, economic development of overseas dependencies, improvement in agriculture and the fishing industry, and improvement of the facilities for marketing farm and fishery output.)

"My Government have under consideration the question of reorganization of the coal industry, including hours and other factors, and of ownership of minerals. Proposals to this end will be submitted in due course."

"Inquiries will be undertaken immediately into the condition of the iron and steel and cotton industries in order to discover the means for co-operating with them to improve their position in the markets of the world."

"Bills will be laid before you for amending existing factory legislation and for giving effect to obligations entered into in Washington in 1919."

(Legislation was promised for alum clearance and to provide for housing in rural and urban areas.)

WEEKS TO COLLECT DEFAULTED BOND FROM ARKY'S WIFE

Circuit Attorney Miller Finds She Has Listed Real Estate Worth $55,000.

UNABLE TO MAKE HUSBAND PAY

She Had Posted $800 Appeal Bond for Him and Case Had Been Allowed to Drop.

Sam Arky, defaulting professional bondsman, is a poor man, it seems. So poor he is unable to produce cash or property where-with to pay off $500 in forfeited bonds which have been reduced to judgment against him. At least the authorities have been unable to find any property in his name.

But Sam's wife, Hannah, owns four pieces of real estate and has a net worth of $55,000, according to her own sworn statement. Because of his notorious record as a bondsman, which brought criticism to his friend, former Circuit Judge Ritter, who accepted many of his bonds, Arky has been barred from all the courts. The old familiar name of Arky was missing for many months from the court records until last June 13, when Mrs. Arky appeared as a bondsman or bondsman—being Circuit Judge Ritter.

To Try to Collect From Wife. On that day Mrs. Arky, qualified as the bond of one Joe Arky, charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, were that she owned property at 2515 Castleman avenue, 2515 Dayton street, 1917 Franklin avenue and 2515-17 Franklin, and that her net worth above debts and ex-ecutions was $55,000.

This greatly interested Circuit Attorney Miller, who has been trying to squeeze some money out of the bond of one Joe Arky, charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, were that she owned property at 2515 Castleman avenue, 2515 Dayton street, 1917 Franklin avenue and 2515-17 Franklin, and that her net worth above debts and ex-ecutions was $55,000.

Today the Circuit Attorney announced he had prepared a petition for filing in the home of the wife of Sam Arky, who was collecting for $800 and costs against her husband for failing to pay her bond for Robert Arky, charged with carrying a concealed weapon, who took French leave.

The Appeal "Shuffle." Rather than pay the forfeited bond, Mrs. Arky appealed, furnishing a $1000 appeal bond with his wife and a bond, Saul W. Schoenfeld, as securities. Instead of prosecuting the appeal, Arky permitted it to die on the appellate court calendar.

March 14, 1928. This is an old trick—sometimes called the "shuffle"—whereby the appellant drags out the proceedings, expecting the authorities will forget about it.

However, the wording of the appeal bond called upon Arky to provide his appeal with "due diligence" and upon his wife and Schoenfeld to pay the $800 if he failed to do so.

Circuit Attorney Miller, in the suit now ready for filing, seeks to collect the $800 from Mrs. Arky or Schoenfeld or both. He has forwarded the petition to his predecessor, Howard Sidener, who is being permitted, on a few basis, as is the custom, to wind up bond forfeitures which originated during his term of office.

always complaining," he testified. "She wasn't really so miserable as you would expect of someone who thought anything of herself."

Harding told in detail about a visit of Nax to Chicago shortly before he was to marry Miss Livingston. "Before Nax came," Harding testified, "I told Ann that any man who pretended to be a friend and came to see her on her wedding eve was a dirty skunk. She was angry and we had words."

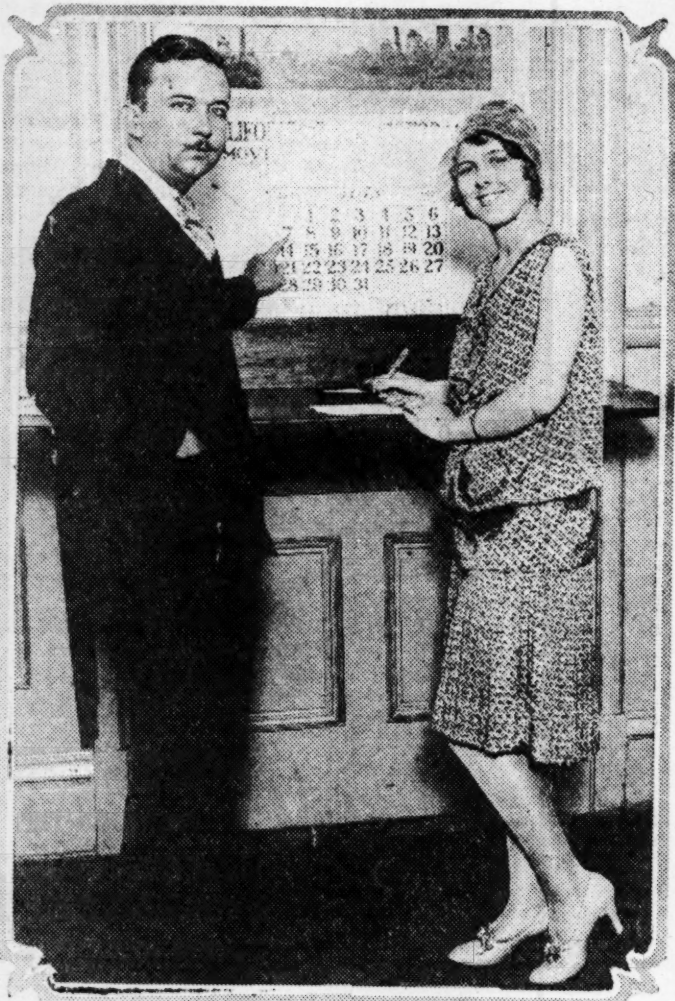

Nevertheless, Harding related, he went to the station with Miss Livingston to meet Nax and to give him tickets to take her to the opera. He told of a party with Nax, a man named Perkins, and others at which cocktails and "vines" were drunk and of meeting Ann while she was having lunch at the station.

"She was very nasty in her manner," he said.

"What did she say?" asked his attorney.

"She didn't say anything — she looked," he said.

HOOVER TO CALL CHILD WELFARE CONFERENCE

Receives $500,000 Gift to Cover Cost of 1930 Meeting.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 2.—President Hoover announced today he was arranging to call a national conference on child welfare to be held at the White House within nine months or a year. The purpose, Mr. Hoover said, would be the determination of present progress and future needs for children's welfare. These activities, he added, did not contemplate any invasion of the rights and duties of parents.

Before the conference itself was assembled, he continued, committees in close touch with various phases of the work would make exhaustive studies and prepare a report to the conference.

To finance the conference and the work necessary before and afterward, President Hoover announced that he had received $500,000 from private sources.

The work will be in charge of Secretary Wilbur of the Interior Department in co-operation with Secretary Davis of the Labor Department. Dr. Henry E. Barnard will act as executive secretary.

The President said the gathering would be composed of the voluntary associations interested in the problem as well as Federal, State and municipal authorities.

Among the subjects to be considered are dependent children; regular medical examination; school or public clinics; hospitalization; adequate milk supplies; community nurses; maternity instruction and nurses; health teaching in schools; recreation and playground facilities; voluntary organization of children; child labor.

President Hoover announced that this would be the first national conference held to review the subject since the conference called by President Roosevelt in 1909 and that public officials and many voluntary bodies were unanimous in their belief that such a review was needed.

We as a nation are fundamentally concerned with the reinforcement of the equality of opportunity to every child," the President said, "and the first necessity for equal opportunity is health and protection."

16 MORE PERSONS ARE TREATED FOR FIREWORKS BURNS

Nearly All of Them Children — Anti-Tetanus Serum Has Been Given to 29 This Year.

Antitetanus serum was administered yesterday to 16 persons injured in premature Fourth of July celebrations. Fourteen were treated at City Hospital, one at City Hospital No. 2 and one by a private physician. So far this year 29 persons have received the serum treatment.

City Hospital authorities have urged that all who suffer gunpowder burns obtain antitetanus injections which are given without charge at the hospital. Minors who are to receive the serum must be accompanied to the hospital by a parent.

Those treated yesterday were: Irvin Edelman, 6 years old, of 4348 De Tonty street, burned fingers. Joseph Kuehner, 21, of 3075 Magazine street, burned eyelids. Irvin Shapiro, 9, of 5515 Vernon avenue, burned hand. Raymond Buss, 12, of 14-9 Rowan avenue, burned hand.

Henry Weinhardt, 19, of 2452A Wyoming street, lacerated chest from cannon cracker. George Engelmann, 12, of 6161 Lucille avenue, burned scalp. Clyde Howard, 13, of 1330 Hickory street, burned hand.

Dorothy Boonshaft, 9, of 4327 De Tonty street, burned eyelid. Lloyd Lupardus, 12, of 1802 Park avenue, burned neck. Everett Howard, 13, of 3319 Vista street, cut hand.

Sarah Levy, 9, of 1444 Laurei avenue, burned chest. Edward Edwards, 34, a jockey at Fairmount racetrack, burned hand. Melvin Dineen, 19, of 919 Cass avenue, burned arm.

Tillie Spiritus, 14, 1319 Bayard avenue, burned leg. Henry Freen, a Negro, 19, of 3011 Dixie street, burned hand. Robert Smith, 5, of 3714A Lincoln avenue, burned hand.

George Larson, 12, of 1407A State street, East St. Louis, was injured last night when a torpedo thrown at him by another boy as he sat on his porch exploded against his head. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

Fire Chief Alt, in a statement issued yesterday, termed fireworks "a menace to life in every community."

"We would not permit our children to run about with blazing torches or with bombs, yet unfortunately as we are with the potential danger of explosives we allow them to be so when there are so many pleasurable toys which involve no bodily injury or fire disaster," he said.

To avoid the suffering which inevitably follows the noisy, dangerous celebration of the Fourth there is just one solution, and that to substitute one that is constructive, less expensive and more enjoyable."

LIST OF "DON'T'S" FOR FOURTH OF JULY ISSUED BY THE SAFETY COUNCIL

THE St. Louis Safety Council has suggested the following Fourth of July "Don'ts": Don't hold firecrackers. Don't fool with firearms. Don't throw firecrackers. Don't play pranks with fire. Don't permit flames to spread. Don't carry fireworks in pockets.

Don't fool with dynamite caps. Don't take any chances in swimming. Don't drive fast if you are an autoist.

Don't fail to caution your children if you are a parent. Don't fail to be doubly careful if you are a fireman.

Don't let the youngsters play with plowheels, torpedoes, roman candles, rockets, toy pistols, or any fireworks.

Don't feel that you have to celebrate with fireworks. It is much better to join in your community's safe and sane celebration.

Don't let down on caution just because it's the Fourth.

U. S. WARRANT AGAINST FORMER DRY INVESTIGATOR

Theft of Interstate Shipment Charged—Seven Others Also Arrested.

Otto Turley of 2022 North Fifty-fourth street, East St. Louis, was charged in a Federal warrant yesterday with theft of goods in interstate shipment. Turley is a former investigator for the St. Clair County Cleanup League—a Ku Klux Klan subsidiary, which was instrumental in prosecuting more than 300 dry law cases in East St. Louis in 1924. He was sentenced to four months in jail and fined $300 in January, 1928, for possession of a still. He is being held in default of bond.

Turley and seven others have been arrested in the last week by East St. Louis police and railroad special agents, in connection with the theft last February of merchandise valued at $5000 from five railroad yards.

The others are William Smith, 777 North Fortieth street; Patrick Kane, 1522 Nectar avenue; Hubert O'Garra, 3406 Bent avenue; Charles Convery, and his brother, W. E. Convery, of 1524 North Twenty-third street; Loraine Hayes of 777 North Fortieth street, and Steve Habanay, 1701 Missouri avenue, a grocer.

Considerable variance was discernible in the respective estimates of resident landowners and of dealers as to the market value of land within the floodway. Resident landowners estimated values as $50 to $150 an acre, while real estate operators testified to a range of $100 to $250 an acre.

Says Land Value Is Hurt. The floodway project already—before actual construction has begun—has wiped out the loan value and materially reduced the sale value of floodway lands, testified C. S. Hale of Maplewood, general counsel of the St. Louis Land Bank.

He said that his bank had 13 loans, amounting to $68,200, on 1810 acres in that section, and that none was in danger of foreclosure except in case of default. The loans, he said, were limited by 50 per cent of assessed valuation.

Drainage bonds have no sale in that district, and municipal bonds have been offered even outside the floodway, according to the testimony of W. R. Humphrey of W. R. Compton & Co., who related that his concern two weeks ago passed an opportunity to bid on bonds of St. Louis because it was near the floodway.

In point of fact, St. Louis is in territory to be protected by the setback levee.

A representative of the Southwest Mortgage Co. told the Court that his employers ordered him by letter a year ago to accept no more applications for loans on land in the floodway.

Considerable variance was discernible in the respective estimates of resident landowners and of dealers as to the market value of land within the floodway. Resident landowners estimated values as $50 to $150 an acre, while real estate operators testified to a range of $100 to $250 an acre.

SUIT TO BLOCK FLOODWAY PLAN ARGUED IN COURT

Judge Davis Hears Pleas for Injunction to Stop All Work on Southeast Missouri Project.

Landowners, land dealers, bankers, bond dealers and money lenders were heard by Federal Judge Davis today in an injunction suit to halt all work on the southeast Missouri floodway until land owners in and near the floodway are compensated for all damages.

Judge Davis' senior associate in this district, Federal Judge Paris, held last week that no insuperable obstacle should now be raised against prompt completion of the $225,000,000 flood control project for the benefit of the entire lower Mississippi Valley.

He ruled that no damage lay in the present phase of the floodway project. This phase is the construction of a setback levee to protect lands outside the floodway from overflow. The damage will begin, he pointed out, with the reduction of the outer levee to "fuse plug" height, which is expected to take place in three years.

Judge Advises Waiting. Then, Judge Paris held, would be the proper time to enjoin the Southeast Missouri project unless landowners had been fully paid. If all damages had not been satisfied when the Government started to make the "fuse plug," which would permit overflow in extreme floods, he assured landowners, he then would issue an injunction immediately upon their application.

In that light Judge Paris struck from a drainage district's answer to the Government's condemnation suits for the levee right-of-way a demand that the Government deposit $15,000,000 to cover flowage rights in the floodway as well as right-of-way for the setback levee.

Judge Davis limited today's hearing to two and one-half hours. Two hours was consumed by testimony in support of the application for an injunction.

Considerable variance was discernible in the respective estimates of resident landowners and of dealers as to the market value of land within the floodway. Resident landowners estimated values as $50 to $150 an acre, while real estate operators testified to a range of $100 to $250 an acre.

MRS. SOPHIE GAY CROW DIES AT AGE OF 85

Civil War Belle and Native St. Louisan Succumbs After Paralytic Stroke.

Mrs. Sophie Mitchell Gay Crow, member of an old St. Louis family and a belle of Civil War days, died today at Jewish Hospital following a paralytic stroke suffered June 13. She was 85 years old. She had been in the hospital since March, 1928, suffering from complications due to the infirmities of age.

Mrs. Crow, daughter of Edward J. Gay, planter and Congressman of Plaquemine, La., and Mrs. Lavinia Hynes Gay of Nashville, was born in the vicinity of Second and Walnut streets. She received her early education in St. Louis and after attending a finishing school in the East went to Paris where she was presented to the Empress Eugenie and the court of Napoleon III as "the belle of St. Louis and Louisiana."

After her return from France in 1867 she was married to Philip Augustus Crow, St. Louis merchant and a nephew of Wayman Crow, who obtained the charters for Washington University and the Mercantile Library and who was an organizer of Crow & Tevis, which was succeeded by the Hargadine-McKittick Dry Goods Co. She had four children, one of whom, Edward Gay Crow, survives.

Mrs. Crow was a descendant of Edward Mitchell, a Revolutionary officer who served under George Washington at Valley Forge. Crow School was named for the Crow family. Her father was a founder of Centenary Methodist Church and built St. Louis' first "skyscraper," the five-story Gay Building at Third and Pine streets. Crow tract at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads, where her father built "Gay Villa" in 1861, was recently sold by Mrs. Crow.

She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Daughters of 1812, and United Daughters of the Confederacy. She had large real estate holdings and until her illness last year remained actively in control of her investments. In recent years her chief interests were literary and she maintained an extensive library at her home, 4429 Forest Park avenue.

Besides her son, Edward Gay Crow, she was survived by Mrs. Andrew Price of Nashville, Tenn., and five grandsons, Wayman, Alexander H., Philip A. and Edward Gay Crow Jr., and John Gay Reilly. Six great-grandchildren also survive.

TWO DRY AGENTS HELD, ACCUSED OF CONVOYING LIQUOR

New York Officers Arrested on Deputy's Charge That They Accompanied Five Trucks in Coupe.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 2.—Two Federal prohibition agents are under arrest today accused of convoying liquor trucks on Long Island. The agents, John J. Kerrigan and John J. Calnan, were arrested at the residence of William Lindsay of Peconic, N. Y., told a United States commissioner he had found them escorting five trucks through Riverhead, N. Y., on the night of June 19.

Lindsay said he stopped three large trucks and two smaller ones on the Nassau County road. Kerrigan and Calnan alighted from a coupe which was following in the procession and explained they were escorting a liquor seizure to an army base in Brooklyn. While the Deputy was talking with the agents the trucks and the drivers escaped. Kerrigan's record in the prohibition department showed he had been previously arrested for threatening with a loaded revolver John Devlin, safety director of Bayonne, N. J., for assaulting a man in a raid on a night club, and for possessing burglar tools. These charges were dismissed.

He also was arrested in October, 1925, in connection with the shooting by a policeman of Owen Boyle in a speakeasy. He appeared as a witness against the policeman, who was acquitted.

He was discharged from the prohibition force in 1926 by Director Chester F. Mills and reinstated a year later by Maurice Campbell, Mills' successor. Calnan was appointed an agent three months ago.

Both agents were suspended pending outcome of the charges. United States Attorney Ameli of Brooklyn said they would be prosecuted under the Jones law for transporting liquor.

BLOW-OUT FUSES FOUND IN FIREWORKS EXPLOSION RUINS

Evidence of Short Circuit in Scharlott Store Turned Over to Prosecutor for Inquiry.
Two electric fuse plugs which had blown out in Scharlott's 5-and-10-cent store, 3343 West Florissant avenue, where four children were burned to death Saturday in a fireworks explosion, were turned over to the Circuit Attorney today as evidence to be used in the grand jury investigation set for next Tuesday.

A Police Department electrician removed the blown fuses yesterday from the circuit which led to an improvised canopy of light bulbs and wires over the fireworks counters. The fuses indicated that a short circuit had occurred either before or during the fire.

An accident verdict was returned at a Coroner's inquest yesterday, following testimony that the explosion and fire followed the collapse of the light canopy. Frank A. Scharlott, owner of the store, is held under bond, charged with the exhibition and sale of fireworks before July 1.

TOURIST BITES ROBBER; LOSES TEETH AND $12

Decatur, Ill., Man Fights When Held Up as He Repairs Tire.

Arthur R. Elliot of Decatur, Ill., lost two front teeth, yanked out by a highwayman with whom he fought on Government drive near the River des Peres in Forest Park, early this morning, and was robbed of $12.

Elliot, touring with his wife and two children, stopped to repair a flat tire in the park about 4:30 o'clock. Two men appeared out of the shadows and attempted to hold him up. Elliot bit the thumb of one robber and lost two teeth when the latter jerked away his hand. One of the men fired two shots to intimidate the motorist. A check of the records of the Hydrox Ice Cream Co., 2406 Belle Glade avenue, held up by two men late Sunday afternoon, showed the loss to be $1483.63 in cash and $302.60 in checks, police were notified yesterday. The loss had been reported previously as about $800 in cash and checks.

A man who ordered a drink in the drug store of Oswald Scott, 4601 Pope avenue, at 11 p. m., was joined by a companion who held up employees and took $208 from cash registers and a safe. About $150 of the sum was Government money, having been collected for money orders.

Two robbers took drugs valued at $8, disregarding money, when they held up the drug store of Elmer Gerding, 3400 Cherokee street, at 11 p. m.

CONVICT WHO REPORTED AUTO AND MACHINE GUN IS PAROLED

Gov. Caulfield Grants Clemency for Preventing Possible Prison Outbreak.

By the Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, July 2.—Lee Smith, Randolph County trusty convict, was paroled today for his action yesterday in reporting the discovery of an abandoned automobile outside the Missouri penitentiary walls containing a loaded machine gun, an automatic pistol and several rounds of ammunition. Smith, who is 20 years old, was paroled by Gov. Caulfield on recommendation of the State Penal Board.

The board's recommendation urged clemency because Smith "reported the facts immediately to officers of the prison, with the result that the weapons, ammunition and automobile were captured and what might have been a serious outbreak at the penitentiary was prevented."

"The board finds in view of the congestion of population necessary to reward conduct of this kind, and to do so promptly in order to set the example to the prison population and call conspicuous attention to the service rendered in aid of the officers."

THE FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC

ROYAL summer with its pomp of greenery and sun holds many happy days. In the afternoon while woodland and field lie bathed in golden calm, there's a shady spot on the porch made cooler with "Canada Dry." When the dewy grass glistens in the early light, there's a place in your car on that all-day picnic for plenty of "Canada Dry." And beneath the deep summer stars, for a dance, for a game of bridge in the cool of the evening, there's the sparkle and gaiety and real refreshment of "Canada Dry."

Truly, a marvelous beverage to drink all the summer through! In the heat of the day it's as cooling as sweet summer rain after drought... refreshing as the breeze which blows before a thunder shower... sparkling as the play of light on blue water... mellow as a lazy canoe ride through calm inlets... and as gay and carefree and joyous as many a bright vacation!

A beverage whose flavor recommends it for every holiday occasion

Drink "Canada Dry" this summer! It is a better, purer, finer beverage. It is made from high-quality Jamaica ginger and other absolutely pure ingredients. It is blended and balanced with skill. The proportions are exactly determined. Hourly check-ups prevent variation from those proportions. Daily tests are made under laboratory methods to assure purity. A secret process of carbonation enables "Canada Dry" to retain its delightful and uniform sparkle long after the bottle is opened. And the final result... "Canada Dry"—the Champagne of Ginger Ales! Its vigor brings zest to meals. Its marvelous flavor gives distinction to any dinner table. And like the aristocrat it is, it makes its quality quietly felt, adding new joy, new gaiety to this season.

For the Fourth of July

Take along a handy Hostess Package on that picnic. Use "Canada Dry" in the punch you make for a buffet supper. Serve it to friends on the lawn as they watch the fireworks. Order it with your meals if you go away for the holidays.

ESCAPED PRISONER FOUND AFTER 7 YEARS

Edward Wells Had Lived in St.
Louis—Betrayed by Anonymous Letter.

An anonymous letter resulted last night in the arrest of Edward Wells, 45 years old, a former, at his home, 1218 Seventh boulevard, and his admission that he escaped
seven years ago from a prison farm at Michigan City, Ind.

In 1922, Wells, living in Fort Wayne, Ind., was convicted of a criminal attack on a 14-year-old daughter of a tenant and got an indeterminate prison sentence of one to 21 years.

"I was innocent," Wells said today. "The tenant framed me, hoping to get my property. After a few months in prison, I was transferred to the prison farm. A trusty struck me. I struck back and was put in solitary confinement. That night I escaped through a window and hopped a freight train that was passing the farm."

"I went to Louisville, remained there a day, then came to East St.
Louis and St. Louis. My wife, mother of our six children, had divorced me when I went to prison. I met a nice widow here and married her, telling her all about my past. I assumed the name of Edward Smith, got a job at the Moon Motor Co. and have broken no laws.

"I made the mistake of telling a former roomer of my escape. We quarreled later, and I suppose that man wrote the letter which brought police after me."

Wells, alias Smith, said he would not return voluntarily to the prison
farm, where he was convicted No.
721.

DANGER SPOTS ALONG MERAMEC ARE POSTED

Survey Shows Places of Which Inexperienced Swimmers Should Beware.

The annual survey of the Meramec River between Eureka and Fenton, conducted by the Meramec River Patrol of the St. Louis Chapter, American Red Cross, to ascertain the danger spots and thus prevent accidents, has been completed. Results of the survey have been printed on placards and posted in conspicuous places along the stream by members of the patrol, a group of volunteer swimmers pledged to devote Sundays and holidays to the prevention of water accidents.

Because of heavy back water from the Mississippi River, the annual survey below Fenton has been delayed, but it is expected that the study will be completed soon.

The results of the completed survey follow:

Times Beach: At normal stage, river above bridge is shallow from beach to about midstream, ending in deep water below bridge. River is deep along opposite shore. Inexperienced swimmers should keep about 200 yards above bridge and not venture out into middle of river. Charles E. Schriempf will do life-guard duty here, and also at Deicke.

Deicke: River under bridge is deep and swift, with rapids below bridge. Bathing should keep well above the bridge near the Deicke shore.

Danger Spot at Palsades. Palsades: Deep water along the north shore. Swift rapids along opposite beach ending in steepoff into deep water about opposite the landing. Inexperienced swimmers should not attempt to swim in this immediate section.

Lincoln Beach: Along the center of the beach, the river bed slopes gradually. At normal stage the water gets about six feet deep, a little more than one-third of the way out. At the end, the slope of the river is more abrupt, with deep water 10 yards out from the Eastern end of the beach. The inexperienced may bathe safely along the center of the beach to a point about one-third way out into the stream. Swift current and deep water along northern shore.

Red Cross life guards at Lincoln Beach are Ralph Breyer, Lawrence Cohn, E. E. Haverstick, Meade McArdle, H. J. Schmolinski and E. N. Birge.

Cedar Bluff: The river bed slopes steeply, with deep water a few feet from shore. Inexperienced swimmers should not attempt swimming here.

Drake: Deep water. Inexperienced swimmers should not swim here.

Life guards, Drake to Fern Glen: C. C. Groner, W. A. Hausknecht, B. J. Heggenham and Jerry Sussner.

Swift Current at Fern Glen. Fern Glen, Union Electric Clubhouse, Meramec Forest: Fairly swift current here. Water is over one's head all along the Missouri Pacific shore. Inexperienced should not swim here.

Life guards, Fern Glen to Valley Park are: Carl Bauer, M. B. Ireland, A. G. Klein, R. C. Plasted, H. R. Thomas, B. G. Schaller, John Singer.

Valley Park: At normal stage, river opposite landings ranges from two to four feet deep. Fairly swift current. Dangerous rapids and deep water below landing along south shore. Deep water along north shore at mouth of creek. A safe place for bathers if they keep opposite and above landing.

Stites and Keiffer's Landings: River at normal stage is shallow at landing. Bottom slopes gradually with water over one's depth at a point beyond midstream; fairly swift current; deep water along south shore. This is a safe place for careful bathers if they do not venture too far out into the river.

Life guards at these points are: C. A. Hannegan, H. L. Rausch, Gene Thomas and C. F. Schmidt.

Long Beach Has Deep Water. Long Beach: At normal stage, river opposite beach is deep about 20 feet from shore. Deep water continues to opposite shore with swift current just beyond midstream, deep water below beach. Inexperienced swimmers should keep close to upper part of beach and not venture into stream.

Long Beach life guards are: Robert Hannegan, C. A. Hannegan and H. L. Rausch.

Fenton: At normal stage shallow water along central and upper part of beach to about midstream. Deep, swift water close to this beach at end near bridge. Swift current in midstream with deep water on opposite shore. Inexperienced swimmers should keep away from middle of river and stay near central or upper part of beach.

Life guards at Fenton are: E. J. Decker, John C. Flint and W. H. Weseloh. Other Red Cross life guards are: A. F. Stumpf at Holzer's Park; Dr. O. W. Appel at Ten Brook; and Harry Erbs and Frank Lansberg at Merschel.

Teeth 3 Shades Whiter

...with the Amazing KOLYNOS
Dry-Brush Technique

HERE'S the new way to clean teeth that dentists are advocating and the public adopting!

It whitens teeth in a new and amazing way. It makes even the duldest and yellowest teeth radiantly white and without the slightest injury to the enamel. It is called the KOLYNOS Dry-Brush Technique and consists of the use of a half-inch of KOLYNOS Dental Cream on a dry tooth brush.

The use of a dry brush means that you use KOLYNOS, a highly concentrated dental cream, full strength; also that the brush bristles then remain stiff enough to scrub the tooth surfaces properly and penetrate the crevices between the teeth, and the pits and fissures in the grinding surfaces.

You can use KOLYNOS on a dry brush because it foams profusely in the mouth—the only tooth paste that does. The secret formula contains one ingredient that causes it to whip instantly into a foaming foam.

It works on the mucin coating on the teeth like millions of tiny fingers, breaking it up and washing it completely off the teeth. Teeth are cleaned down to the naked white enamel without injury.

The foam pushes its way into all the tiny crevices in the mouth. It penetrates where no "wet" tooth paste can go. It cleans out and disinfects all those places where food particles lodge and cause decay. It refreshes the whole mouth and gums with a tingling, germicidal foam. No other dentifrice gives you like effects.

Prove it!

All drug and toilet counters sell KOLYNOS. Buy a tube today. Start using it faithfully, morning and night. Results will delight you.

CHEMIST SAYS HOMEBREW RUINS TASTE FOR BEER

Former Expert With Anheuser-Busch Testifies at Grape Juice Trial in Federal Court.

"There is nobody in the United States today that knows good beer or good wine since the eighteenth amendment went into effect. The home brew industry has ruined everybody's taste for good beer."

This sober judgment on the country's drinkers was pronounced before Federal Judge Davis yesterday by a witness in the $100,000 grape-juice trial which, among other developments to date, has served to make public a letter from United States Senator Gould of Maine, who rejoiced in "some very fair results" from grape juice.

The witness was Carl A. Nowak of Webster Groves, formerly with Anheuser-Busch, author of several books on food chemistry, who testified that he conducted "a private school of fermentation" in Chicago prior to the Volstead act.

Vinegar Instead of Wine. Householders who keep grape juice in kegs in their kitchens or cellars are more likely to obtain vinegar than wine, Nowak disclosed to his attentive audience.

"There are two results of fermentation," he explained. "There is wine, a palatable beverage. On the other hand there is vinegar, caused by the acetic germs which are found in greater quantity in grape juice than the germs that produce wine."

Wine Versus Juice. "What is the difference between wine and grape juice?" the witness was asked.

"The Bible," he answered, "speaks frequently of wine and also of the juice of the grape. The Bible does not say the wine had any alcoholic content, and therefore I assume when the Bible speaks of wine it means grape juice."

"Do you mean," pursued an attorney, "that when the Bible speaks of Christ's changing water into wine at the marriage feast of Cana it means the wine had no alcoholic content?"

"The only information I get on that subject," continued the witness, "is from the Bible and it does not say the wine had any alcoholic content."

Kegs Puzzle Him. The witness admitted that, while he had watched the process of fermentation and had analyzed wine, he had never made wine, nor had he "serviced" grape juice, which, as the trial has disclosed, is the trade's way of helping nature's process.

The witness also professed not to understand why kegs of grape juice were shipped to customers with vents in the kegs. When the process of fermentation was completed, there was no necessity for vents, he added.

"Authority," Not Expert. Asked if he considered himself an expert, Nowak replied:

"No. There can be only one expert in any one line of endeavor. The expert is the man to whom everybody turns for the last word on that subject. I am not the last word. I much prefer to be called an authority, but I am distinctly not an expert."

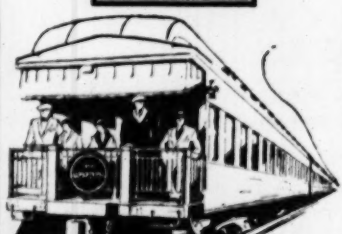

Another witness, C. M. Corrington, grape juice salesman, amused the Court when he defined "palatable" as follows:

"That means if you take one drink of a liquid you soon want another."

No Lack of "Kick." He declared that one of his customers ever complained of a lack of "kick" in his product and none ever admitted there was "too much kick."

The trial, as has been told,

The PENNSYLVANIA announces 48 hour Coast to Coast Service by RAIL and AIR

"... the word 'railroad' no longer is adequate to describe the transportation service which up-to-date railroads now offer to the public. We are no longer railroads alone; we are transportation companies... We must be prepared to offer you railroad service where it is most desirable, or bus service, or service by airplane..."

GENERAL W. W. ATTERBURY,
President of the Pennsylvania Railroad

THE Pennsylvania Railroad has proceeded with characteristic attention to the safety and comfort of the traveling public in its participation in the first 48 hour Coast to Coast Rail-Air Service—effective July 7th from New York—July 8th from Port Columbus and Los Angeles, daily thereafter.

The Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc.—with which the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Santa Fe Railway have associated themselves in this new project—has engaged in the most searching investigation and preparation.

Under the supervision of a staff of experts—headed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh—air routes have been selected, mapped, tested by flights. Millions of dollars have been spent in the building of extensive airports. Airplanes have been most rigorously tested.

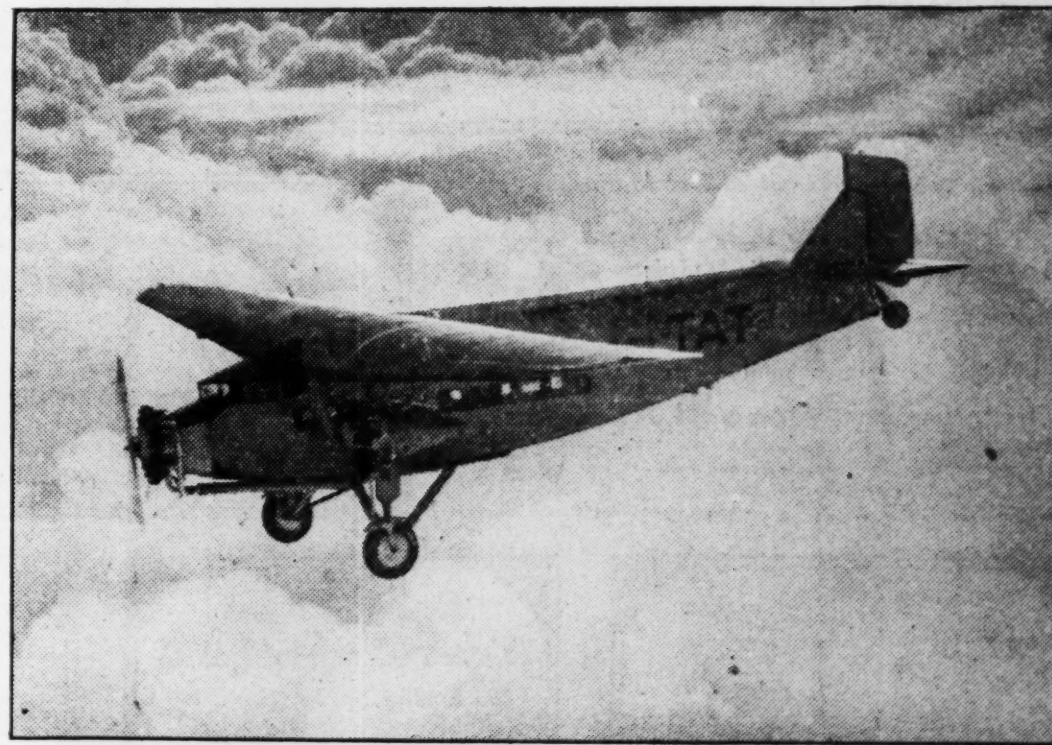

A private meteorological system has been developed... also an elaborate system of communications—making it possible for planes in flight to receive weather reports compiled from observations at 82 different points...

In short, everything possible has been done to ensure in this new enterprise the highest standards of speed, security, comfort—such as mark the daily operations of "the largest fleet of trains in America."

For rates, information, etc., telephone Main 3200. J. F. Hart, Division Passenger Agent, 1063 Boatmen's Bank Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

LABOR DEFENSE PLEA BARRED FROM MAILS

Appeal on Envelopes Sought Aid for Strikers Under Arrest.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The international labor defense today announced the New York Postmaster had barred from the mails its specially printed envelopes carrying appeals for aid in the defense of 23 textile strikers and strike leaders in Gastonia, N. C.

In his letter to the Labor Defense informing it of his action, Postmaster J. J. Kiely said he had been advised by the Solicitor for the Postoffice Department that the envelopes, which bear a printed exhortation, were unlawful under postal laws and regulations.

The Labor Defense announced it would demand removal of the ban and, if necessary, carry its fight to the Federal courts.

The 23 Gastonia strikers were arrested after a fight at their tent colony in which a police chief was shot fatally and two deputies and a strike leader were wounded.

The postmaster's action recalled similar action taken early last year, when letters bearing "protest stamps" sold to aid the cause of Sandino, Nicaraguan rebel, were barred.

Gets Divorce From Banker.

RENO, Nev., July 2.—Mrs. Marion K. Stewart obtained a divorce in District Court yesterday from Louis Stewart Jr., vice president of the Central Mercantile Bank of New York, on the grounds of cruelty. She testified that her husband was intolerant, unreasonable and jealous. She got the custody of her two children, whom Stewart agreed to support, besides giving her $500 a month alimony.

City Bank Farmers Trust Company Opens Its Doors as an Affiliate of The National City Bank of New York

THE CITY BANK FARMERS TRUST COMPANY represents a consolidation of the trust organizations of The National City Bank of New York and The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. Its stock is trustee for the benefit of the shareholders of The National City Bank of New York and their beneficial interest will be evidenced by an indorsement on the stock certificates of the Bank in the same manner as their beneficial interest in The National City Company is now evidenced.

The City Bank Farmers Trust Company with a capital of $10,000,000 and a surplus of $10,000,000 will operate under the 107 year old charter of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. It will be administered by a separate Board of Directors composed of trust-minded and investment-minded men of recognized calibre. The executive officers will be men of experience in the handling of trust business being drawn from those who have handled similar work in the merged institutions. The Chairman will be the Chairman of The National City Bank of New York, the President will be the former President of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

Pending the completion of a new building covering the entire block bounded by Hanover Street, Exchange Place, William Street and Beaver Street, to be known as the City Bank Farmers Trust Building, which will be the permanent home of the City Bank Farmers Trust Company, the organization will be located in temporary quarters at 43 Exchange Place, with some departments occupying quarters at 52 Wall Street.

We believe that the day of the individual trustee is waning and that the day of the corporate trustee is just in its dawning. With the complicated and intricate problems of the present with respect to the administration of estates, with the growing need for so-called voluntary or living trusts, and with the opening of new avenues for the relief of the cares of handling accumulated wealth, the trust business is one presenting an opportunity for enormous growth. It is, in our opinion, a business that can be conducted to its fullest efficiency only by specialists. It cannot be looked upon as a by-product, a sideline of a commercial banking institution. It is far too important. It is a business, which, in the interests of those it serves, must be conducted by men whose lives are devoted exclusively to it.

Viewed as just another "banking merger" the creation of the City Bank Farmers Trust Company and its close affiliation with The National City Bank of New York, is an event of no particular importance. But, considered in the light of the purposes and the expressions of those who have brought this institution into being and in the light of the interests of those who have entrusted the management and administration of their affairs to the two institutions, its establishment has deep significance. It has equal significance to those who are contemplating the establishment of living trusts, the making of a will, the protection of their families. It has equal significance for corporate officials who look for greater efficiency in the handling of corporate trusteeships, and registrar and transfer services.

And so the City Bank Farmers Trust Company makes its bow to the Public and solicits the opportunity to serve it.

GERARD LAMBERT'S YACHT VANITIE AGAIN DEFEATS THE RESOLUTE

ST. LOUIS OWNED SLOOP'S MARGIN IN TRIAL EVENT 2 MINS., 36 SECS

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Mass., July 2.—Gerald B. Lambert's white sloop, Vanitie, an avowed candidate for America's Cup defense in 1930, won her forty-ninth race from her 15-year-old rival, the Resolute, owned by E. Walker Clark of Philadelphia, in the first of two regattas held in Buzzards Bay yesterday by the Beverly Yacht Club.

As in her races last year and in the two which she won in Long Island Sound last month, the St. Louis-owned Vanitie was sailed by former Commodore George Nichols of the New York Yacht Club, with her owner near the tiller and Charles Francis Adams Jr., a son of the Secretary of the Navy, as one of the after-deck crew.

The two bronze sloops had a grand contest of nine miles to windward, and then slid for another nine miles down the breeze, which blew steadily nearly all afternoon. Vanitie's lead at the finish was 1 minute and 36 seconds, but as she had to allow the Resolute about 4 seconds to the mile, the handicap cut her margin to 2 minutes and 36 seconds in corrected time.

Although Commodore Nichols had the Vanitie right on the line at the start, he had difficulty in increasing her lead on the beat to the outer mark, where the Lambert sloop had a margin of a little more than a minute. Coming back the two sloops beat to leeward, making long hitches with booms broad off first to one side of the bay and then the other. In this game, Nichols beat Clark, and it was in the nine miles to leeward that the Vanitie drew gradually away from the Resolute.

The Vanitie beat the Resolute by 3 minutes and 42 seconds in the second contest the next day. Had the course yesterday been as long as those in the first two races, it is likely that the margin would again have been a trifle over 3 minutes. The sloops are scheduled to meet in another race today.

ATHLETIC SWEATER IS AWARDED AFTER 33-YEAR INTERVAL

By the Associated Press.
SALEM, Ore., July 2.—It took A. F. Bittner 33 years to get his official athletic award sweater from Willamette University.

Bittner, now principal of Grant high school, Portland, won his school letter in the spring of 1896 when as a member of the track team he piled up points for his school.

He was called away before the awards were made and, through some inadvertence never received his letter.

The oversight was discovered recently by university athletic officials and the error rectified.

ST. PAUL TAKES TEAM BATTING LEAD IN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 2.—American Association batmen continued to follow, at a distance, the lead of Al Cooke, St. Paul outfielder, during the tenth week of the campaign. Cook increased his pace during the period and presented a mark of .397 for his rivals to shoot at.

Behind Cooke was Spencer Harris, Minneapolis outfielder, who had a mark of .329. Cooke not only topped the list for regular workmen, but also led in home runs with 14. Other leading batsmen were: Penner, St. Paul, .347; Grigsby, Kansas City, .345; Freigau, Toledo, .342; Stogell, St. Paul, .341; Gerkin, Kansas City, .341; Branom, Louisville, .341; Pick, Milwaukee, .340; Tucker, Kansas City, .340.

Cooke increased his average by three points during the week and his example apparently inspired the rest of his mates, who collectively hammered the ball for an average of .206, boosting St. Paul from third to first place in team batting. Minneapolis slipped to second from the top place, with .302, and Kansas City dropped from second to third at .301.

The Blues continued to show the way in fielding with an average of .972, while the Columbus Senators remained in second position at .968.

St. Paul, seventh in team fielding, had collected 69 double plays to lead in that department.

Old Eube Benton, Minneapolis leading hurler, won one game during the week and had the best mark of pitchers working in turn with 11 victories and three defeats.

Americus Polli, St. Paul ace, won one and dropped one, and had 11 victories and four defeats. Bryan "Slim" Harris, St. Paul, retained his mark of seven triumphs and one setback, although he failed to finish his only start.

Other leaders: Burns batted in Earl Smith, Minneapolis, 56; triples Chapman, St. Paul, 10; doubles, S. Harris, Minneapolis, 21; stolen bases, Emmer, Minneapolis, 16; runs scored, Chapman, St. Paul, 63; hits, Regell, St. Paul, 92; team runs, Minneapolis, 451; opponents runs, Kansas City, 267; team home runs, Minneapolis, 59.

O'FALLON KEEPS CLEAN RECORD IN PARK TENNIS

O'Fallon Park still leads the men's division of the Municipal Interpark Tennis Association after all results from the last games had been reported to officers.

O'Fallon continued its winning streak, taking five games in a row in a match with Baden Park. The victors have not lost a game in Interpark competition this season. The women's team of O'Fallon was idle, having drawn a bye.

Forest Park won four out of five matches in the women's division from Kingshighway Park, and without the services of Mellicent Endicott, No. 1 player for Forest Park in the singles. She was granted a postponement on account of taking part in the State tournament at Kansas City.

PART THREE.

HOOPER HOPES FOR TAX CUT AS RESULT OF LARGE SURPLUS

Before That Can Be Arranged However, Many Other Factors Must Be Determined.

LEGISLATION HAS RAISED EXPENSES

How Far Stock Exchange
Activity Has Increased
Revenue Must Also Be Known.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—President Hoover is hopeful that the treasury surplus at the end of the fiscal year just closed may lead to a reduction in Federal taxes, but he feels that there are many factors to be determined before a definite program can be formulated.

The President said today that he expects a tax reduction can be effected without effecting a reduction in the Treasury's revenue. He said that the Treasury must be able to determine the extent to which routine expenditures can be reduced must be known and that the revenue must be more fully estimated.

By Mr. L. Hoover, President Hoover's comment on tax reduction in reply to questions of Washington correspondents follows:

"We are giving careful study to the possibility of tax reduction. It is our hope that the situation may work out on the side of a safe surplus from material relief. We must determine three things before we can have any conclusion reached."

"First, we must know what the effect will be on the legislation during the last 12 months which has greatly increased expenditures beyond the present fiscal year, beyond the original budget. The increased expenditures for naval armaments, the increased expenditure for army and navy aviation, the building of army posts and the expenditures on veterans' services in addition to the necessary expenditures in the Mediterranean and relief work, have all increased since the budget was passed."

"Second, we must know how far we can reduce expenditures of the government in other directions to partially compensate for these increased expenditures during the past 12 months."

"We know that expenditures for the fiscal year just passed exceeded the original budget by over $200,000,000 and much of the legislative expanding expenditures has not yet come into effect. The completion of the budget for the year beginning July 1, 1929, will be helpful in determining the rate of these increased expenditures."

CZECHS AND HUNGARIANS
NEAR BREAK OVER ARREST

Employer Suspected of Espionage; Train Service Across Border Suspended.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 2.—Relations between Czechoslovakia and Hungary, which have been strained for some time, seemed today to be on the verge of breaking in consequence of the arrest yesterday on suspicion of espionage of Vincenc Pecha, a Czech-Slovakian railroad employee. The situation became aggravated today when the Czechoslovakian government as a measure of retaliation ordered the suspension of all railroad service over the border with Hungary, where the arrested Pecha was working.

This affects thousands of Hungarians who at this season of the year are accustomed to go to Czechoslovakia for their summer vacations and other Czech pleasure resorts.

The Czechoslovakian authorities report that Pecha was having a meal in the railroad restaurant when two Hungarian gendarmes entered and put him in chains without adequate evidence to warrant his detention. The restaurant owner, who defended Pecha, also was arrested, but later was released because he was a Hungarian.

The newspapers print vigorous editorials urging the government to take drastic action.

Reason for Enlarging Paper. NEW YORK, July 2.—The Enquirer, an American Italian tabloid, has increased its size, editorially explained the change was made because a reader in Boston, N. Y., complained that the paper was too small in which to wrap his lunch.

Barges Carry More Freight
Than Packets in Old Days

Figures Showing Importance of River to City
Shown in Report of Director of Streets—
Varied Tasks of Harbor Boat.

Importance of the Mississippi River in the commercial life of St. Louis often is forgotten by the average citizen, but the annual report of Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks contains striking figures on this subject and carries a bit of the picturesque of the levee and the swirling current between its lines.

Back in the 70's the old-fashioned steamboats crowded the wharf here, but today a comparatively few barges are carrying more freight and are doing it quicker. In the fiscal year ending April 8, Director Brooks reported, 631,146 tons of freight were received here by water and 6,331,774 board feet of lumber and logs.

The bulk of the freight—652,876 tons—came all the way on the Mississippi, mostly by the Federal barge line. From the Illinois River, including much of the apple crop of Calhoun County, which has no railroad, there came 26,720 tons; from the Missouri 8588 tons and from the Ohio 1862 tons. The Cottonwood fleet of the upper Mississippi, carrying the lumber and logs, and the St. Louis Barge and Box Co. 3,302,610 feet.

Details of Freight Traffic. Details of the freight traffic follow: Seventeen Government boats including the barge line, made 207 arrivals here from the lower Mississippi, five of them hauling barges; six Government boats made 79 arrivals from the upper Mississippi, two with barges; 15 Mississippi packet boats, with quaint names like the Belle of Calhoun and the North Star, made 341 calls, the steamboat Illinois leading with 100 visits; the Golden Eagle, the Plana and the Bald Eagle together made 79 trips here from the Illinois River; seven boats from the Ohio made one call each and another came twice; the handcarried came here 10 times from the Missouri River and 12 other craft, one with barges, together made 25 calls here from that stream.

Chief J. Roy Parker, harbor master in the Department of Streets and Sewers, reported 65 boats, tugs, derricks, barges and ferries operating locally in the harbor. Under his command, the tug Ed Koehn, a sand digger, the Alpha Cement Co. tug Alpha, a sand digger and a derrick boat, the Missouri Portland Cement Co. tug Harry Block and Robert Carr, two sand diggers and two derrick boats, the Runprecht Co. a ferry boat, a sand digger and a derrick boat, the Southern Coal, Coke & Mining Co. tug Susta Hazard and a tug boat, the Turnbull; the Eagle Packet Co., the tug Colorado; the Streckfus Line, the excursion boats St. Paul, J. S. and Majestic, and the Higgins Ferry Co., the ferry plying between St. Louis and East St. Louis for trucking, the Julius Walsh.

What Harbor Boat Does. The log of the Erastus Wells, carried in the report, shows that fire drill was held on board frequently at 11:15 a. m. Few St. Louisians know that this boat is equipped as a river front fire-fighter and sometimes is called out two or three times a month on blazes. It carries connections for half a dozen hose lines. Its last important fire was at the foot of Branch street and a notable one, lasting 24 hours, was in a coal dump on the East Side two years ago.

At the foot of Poplar, Gratiot and Steins streets the city maintains landing boats where any refuse that will float away in the river may be dumped. In the last fiscal year they received 57,305 truck and wagon loads, nearly all at Gratiot street, and the log shows that the Erastus Wells towed them to dump the contents into the stream periodically. Similar service was performed for a Street Department trap boat moored at Poplar street.

A frequent duty of the Erastus Wells is to tie up near shore and churn the water with its two side paddle wheels, to wash accumulated mud from the levees. After periods of high water its crew also uses hose lines to clean the paved wharf downtown.

Used as Pleasure Craft. The boat is used sometimes for pleasure or inspection trips of officials and to entertain convention visitors with river rides, as it has commodious decks and cabins. Entries in the last fiscal year's log include: "May 25, 1928, left 2 p. m. down the river with army officers, returned 4:30 p. m., 50 passengers aboard; June 2, left 2:30 p. m. up and down the river with his honor, Mayor Miller and officials, returned 12 midnight, with 113 passengers; June 6, left 1:30 p. m. with Yardmasters' convention, returned 5 p. m., 55 passengers aboard; July 3, boat races, harbor boat lying foot of Pine street; July 4 and 5, boat races; Oct. 18, left 2:30 p. m. with party of newspaper association in charge of Mr. Lansing Ray, returned 5:30 p. m., 25 passengers; Nov. 22, left 2 p. m. with City Plan Commission up and down river, returned 4:30 p. m., 17 passengers.

The Erastus Wells was acquired new in 1907 for $65,000, succeeding the Mark Twain as harbor boat. It was built at Grafton, Ill. In 1924 the Bureau of Municipal Research said the city could save $27,000 a year by scrapping the boat and hiring others when occasion arose for work.

SASKATCHEWAN PARLIAMENT
BUILDING IS SET ON FIRE

Little Damage Done by Blaze Attributed to Unemployed Men After Conference.

By the Associated Press. REGINA, Sask., July 2.—An incendiary who attempted to burn the provincial Parliament buildings but only succeeded in damaging the massive oak doors, was being sought today by Royal Canadian mounted and local police.

A physician shortly after midnight Saturday detected the flames shooting up from the doorway. The blaze was extinguished by firemen who found that a can filled with kerosene and surrounded by oil-soaked waste and sacks had been set on fire.

On the stonework near the charred doors were found the words: "Gardiner and Crime—Get Out," printed in red chalk. James G. Gardiner is Premier of Saskatchewan. The police theory is that the fire was set by unemployed men who at conferences with representatives of the Government on Friday and Saturday were not given the employment they sought.

M. E. TEMPERANCE BOARD GOT $109,563 LAST YEAR

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, July 2.—The Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, received $109,563 for its work last year, while the Board of Hospitals received $114,574.34. Dr. Orrin W. Auman, treasurer of the Methodist World Service Commission, reported today at the sixth annual meeting of the commission for its various agencies during the year amounted to $7,961,898.63.

Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Board of Morals, advocated a policy of co-operation of liquor running on the border. Failing such arrangement, he said, the United States should make every effort to track down the runners, an action which he feared might prove embarrassing to both nations.

FOR SUPERVISION OF

Asserts Purpose of Instruction Is to Teach Youth
How, Not What, to Think.

By the Associated Press. ATLANTA, July 2.—A warning that public schools must not be subverted to propaganda was given today in a committee's report to the representative assembly of the National Education Association in convention here.

The report was submitted by the chairman, Edwin C. Broome, Superintendent of Schools of Philadelphia. "The propagandist is knocking at the school door," he reported. "In some instances he has already been admitted. There is nothing to indicate that he will overlook the schools in the future."

"The teacher's mind is open on all subjects. The main purpose of propaganda is to teach what to think, while the guiding purpose of education is to teach how to think. This is a significant issue for school authorities because of the imperative need for an adult citizenry capable of protecting itself from the many appeals of all forms of propaganda."

Welfare of Children First. "The welfare of children is the primary function of a public school and in the last fiscal year's log include: 'May 25, 1928, left 2 p. m. down the river with army officers, returned 4:30 p. m., 50 passengers aboard; June 2, left 2:30 p. m. up and down the river with his honor, Mayor Miller and officials, returned 12 midnight, with 113 passengers; June 6, left 1:30 p. m. with Yardmasters' convention, returned 5 p. m., 55 passengers aboard; July 3, boat races, harbor boat lying foot of Pine street; July 4 and 5, boat races; Oct. 18, left 2:30 p. m. with party of newspaper association in charge of Mr. Lansing Ray, returned 5:30 p. m., 25 passengers; Nov. 22, left 2 p. m. with City Plan Commission up and down river, returned 4:30 p. m., 17 passengers."

Code of Ethics. The convention adopted a code of ethics which declares: "The schoolroom is not the proper theater for religious, political or personal propaganda."

"The teacher should not permit his educational work to be used for partisan politics, personal gain, or selfish propaganda of any kind."

"The teacher should not tutor pupils in his classes for pay."

"The teacher should insist upon a salary scale suitable to his place in society."

"The teacher should not act as agent or accept royalty, a commission or other rewards for books or supplies in the selection of which he can exercise an influence."

David Walter Williams, founder of the University of Missouri School of Journalism and president emeritus of the World Press Congress, addressed the educators. The title of his speech was "A Reporter Looks at a New World."

"A force to blow up the rocks of indifference and intolerance—that's what education means in the new world," he declared. "Going from place to place, the reporter sees that it is a new world, a new and different world. He sees that this new world brings not new duties but old ones in new dress. There is the challenge to fit old principles to the new world."

"We must grow more tolerant, the reporter thinks, in so small a world. And the tolerance is rooted in a wide historical knowledge so that we may see events in their proper perspective."

PRUSSIA WOULD TREAT OTHER CHURCHES SAME AS CATHOLIC

Dr. Becker Tells Diet Protestants May Have Rights Equal to Those in Vatican Treaty.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, July 2.—The Prussian Government yesterday informed the Diet that it was willing to give to Protestant churches the same privileges accorded to the Catholic Church in the new Statute treaty between Prussia and the Vatican. The announcement came while the treaty was on first reading with Dr. Carl Becker, Minister of Education, making the promise.

Dr. Becker gave a historical review of the development of Catholicism in Protestant Prussia. He said that the Government wished particularly to avoid a renewal of Bismarck's "Kulturkampf" and therefore kept out of the treaty all questions relating to schools or other contentious subjects. He asserted that reference had already been made to the Protestant churches that negotiations for an equal agreement would be begun immediately after the Vatican treaty had been disposed of.

Speakers of the Nationalist and People's parties declined to accept the bill on first reading because the privileges granted to the Catholic Church were not simultaneously extended to the Protestants. They attacked Dr. Becker because he had prohibited student demonstrations against the accord and they said they had no confidence in promises made by a Government which was headed by a Socialist, Premier Braun. Communists objected to any financing of churches and argued that the Catholics would use the treaty later to get control of the schools.

Dr. Becker said the ratification bill to a committee and fixed the second reading for Friday.

$85,000 OF HERRICK ESTATE
TO HOSPITAL AND LIBRARY

Will of Late Ambassador to France Leaves Bulk of $1,200,000 Property to Son.

CLEVELAND, O., July 2.—Under the will of the late Myron T. Herrick, Ambassador to France, filed today, $85,000 is left to the American Hospital in Paris and the Herrick Public Library at Wellington, O. The hospital will receive a $15,000 endowment fund and the library, established in Mr. Herrick's lifetime as a memorial to his father and mother, $70,000. Of the library bequest, $50,000 is to be used to construct a new wing for a children's library and $20,000 is to be used as the library trustees deem advisable. The will requests that a suitable tablet be erected on the exterior of the building to recall that it was the site of the slave rescue in 1858 which resulted in the famous Oberlin-Wellington rescue case. It also asks that a tablet be installed in the main library as a memorial to the Ambassador's mother and father, and another in the new wing as a memorial to his grandson, the late Myron Timothy Herrick II.

After one other specific bequest, $5000 to Mary Herrick Smith, a sister, the residue of the estate was left to the son, Parmly W. Herrick. The total gross value of the estate was estimated at $1,200,000, while the net value after all charges are paid is set at $750,000. Parmly Herrick was named sole executor.

SMOOT DENIES NEW TARIFF
WILL BE UNFAIR TO FARMERS

Charges of Democrats Are Misleading, He Says, in Their Search for Political Capital.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance Committee, today characterized as unfair and misleading, the statements by Democrats that the farmers are being dealt with unfairly in the tariff revision in the Senate and House.

Replying to a charge by Senator George of Georgia, a Democratic member of the Committee, that increases in agricultural rates were being followed by increases in manufactured rates far beyond the compensatory level, the Utah Senator declared the Finance Committee had not acted on any schedules as yet and was not likely to do so for some time.

"The Democrats are so anxious to make political capital out of the situation," he added, "that they are imagining all sorts of rates and unjust schedules."

"As a matter of fact, both the Ways and Means Committee, and so far the Finance Committee, in gestures have given the farmers and producers by far the best of it."

"Thus far, practically the only increases suggested to the industrial schedules are due to compensation, that is, increases in manufactured goods because of increases in raw materials."

TOKIO, July 2.—Yuko Hamaguchi, the third untitled Premier in Japan's history, and the members of the New Minseitō (Opposition Party) Cabinet were installed today in the Palace in the presence of the Emperor. The new Ministry succeeds that of Baron Tanaka of the Seiyukai Party, which resigned shortly before noon after a Cabinet crisis precipitated by investigation of the assassination of Marshal Chang-Tso-Lin in Manchuria last year.

Among the new ministers are Baron Kijuro Shidehara, former Ambassador at Washington, Foreign Affairs; Kenzo Adachi, Home Affairs; Kyo Takarabe, Admiralty; Gen. Issei Ugaki, War; Junnosuke Inouye, Finance.

Another cause contributing to the fall of the Government was said to have been dissatisfaction with handling of the ratification of the Kellogg anti-war pact. Opposition centered about a phrase, and became so strong that ratification for a long time was in doubt.

The new Premier lives frugally and is comparatively poor. He is popularly known as "The Lion" because of his shaggy hair, eyebrows and mustache, and his stentorian platform voice, while he also bears a reputation for the highest integrity.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight democracy of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Reckless Aviators Injure the Industry.

EVERY day the papers are full of the many airplane crashes and wrecks, and when our parents read them it makes it pretty hard on our young ones who desire to be aviators. The main trouble is that there is not enough explanation as to how the accidents are caused. If there were more of such explanations it would enlighten our parents to find that some of these accidents were due to carelessness which could have been avoided. It would also instill caution in those who desire to take up aviation as a vocation, and might encourage them to invent means of remedying these weak points. We can always learn from the experience of others.

The Bull and the Pomace.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH.
A LETTER, headed "The Prize-Winning Hearst Essay," intimates that "God hath made all things perfect," including the process of fermentation, but that man hath sought out the invention of "permitting" grape juice to ferment in a gourd and apple juice in a vinegar barrel, or some container.
A colored gentleman down near Coulterville used to make sorghum molasses. His mill was on the bank of a creek which flowed through a pasture. The pomace from the cane press was piled on the creek bank near a water hole. "A little bull in that pasture," a colored friend, "took a sup out of that water hole and looked up at me and grinned." Presently the little bull took another little drink; he got his head and tail up for let out a bellow that could be heard for miles around. He jumped a 10-rail stake and rider fence, went over into another pasture, where he gored and killed his own father. Next day, there was a mighty sick little bull in the vicinity of a molasses mill. Our friend says: "Dat bull sho ack jes tak a man."

Now the hard question we should like to ask is who, or what, permitted that pomace to "become of sufficient alcoholic content to make that little bull crazy drunk and murder his best friend?"

Bishop Cannon.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH.
OUR saintly old friend, Bishop Cannon, has his name in the paper again. The Bishop has been condemning the rest of us for having our weak moments, that is, taking a drink. It looks as though the Bishop has his own weak moments. I don't see anything morally wrong in taking a drink, neither do I see anything morally right in gambling in stocks.

Two Views of the Post Case.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH.
DON'T you think your editorial of Saturday, June 22, "An Unbelievable Tale," and the accompanying cartoon—"Was Slavery Ever Worse Than This?" rather melodramatic?
What are the facts in this case? On page three of the same edition you tell us that United States Attorney Langley said the officers had repeated information that Mrs. Post was violating the law. Also that the report was that some of the children had left home on account of the liquor selling and that at one time she and her husband were estranged for the same reason.

Now just why should a woman who has no respect for the wishes of her family, and none for the law be martyred by the Post-Dispatch? And why should a paper that can give us the delightfully sarcastic article on the same page—"They Win, as Usual, in Illinois"—insult our intelligence with a cheap, insane, "soap box" type of editorial, such as "An Unbelievable Tale"? Slavery indeed, where is the parallel?

My pity and sympathy are for the family on whom this mother has placed a stigma, for always, and the Judge in the case, who no doubt is coming in for plenty of censure by the sentimentalists.

N. H. L.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH.
PERMIT me to congratulate you upon your most excellent editorial regarding the case of Mrs. Post. Dr. Bragg has a few more mothers like this poor defenseless soul across the country to prison will incite rebellion. It seems that the trial Judge, in view of the circumstances, should have been a little more lenient, fined the defendant with a warning of more severe punishment should she ever again be arrested for the same offense. Perhaps he wanted to hold this wife and mother before us as an example while thousands of other bootleggers operate right out in the open and are never punished.

Wonder if Bishop Cannon would sign a petition to the President to pardon this mother and send her back to her husband and children, who need her on that poor, unprofitable fruit farm. That would be a real act of mercy which was not in the makeup of the Judge who passed sentence.
OSCAR RANDELL.

A B C OF FRANCHISES.

The one thing that was uppermost in my mind always was the franchise. . . . This franchise gives an enormous value to the property over and above its physical worth. The bankers were keen to see that. . . . I try to be a banker. The bankers and the street railway men work together always.—From J. K. Newman's testimony before the Federal Electric Railways Commission, July, 1919.

The all-important fact to keep in mind in the franchise issue is that the grant of a special privilege to use the streets or other public property for a fixed or indeterminate period constitutes a franchise, which is at law a right. In the days before the momentous Smythe vs. Ames decision was handed down by the United States Supreme Court, franchises invariably fixed the rates for service.

The effect of the Smythe vs. Ames decision was to deprive cities of the power to regulate rates and service, and allow franchises they had granted to stand; and, further, to subject the utilities exercising these rights to regulation only by the police power of the state. Since that decision the several states, including Missouri, have created state public service commissions to exercise that power. The commissions come in for a great deal of criticism because they allow "reproduction new" valuations, such as the $62,500,000 figure for the local street railway company, which paid only $49,100,000 for its property. But the commissions are only applying the law of the land as laid down in the Smythe vs. Ames case and upheld in other decisions, including the recent O'Fallon case.

The public may well ask, is there no escape from this intolerable situation except municipal ownership? Happily, there is a way out. Indeed, Mayor Miller, one of the most powerful proponents of the terminable permits bill—as he was a powerless opponent of the gas company's perpetual franchise a short time ago—has used it in dealing with this very street car company.

The escape is the permit issued by the city, a genuine permit, which does not confer a right on the utility, but only permission to do things the permit says it may, and do them at the pleasure of the city. The permit is cancelable upon notice by the city. The service rendered and the rates charged are under complete and exclusive control of the city. There is no appeal to state commission or courts.

Since Mayor Miller was inaugurated April 21, 1925, for his first term, such permits have been issued by his Board of Public Service for the operation of 250 or more busses, some by the Peoples Motor Bus Co.; some by the street car company. These permits fix the fare at 10 cents for the bus company and the regular street car fare for the trolley company, and require that every passenger shall have a seat. Such permits were first issued by Mayor Kiel, who established the policy of no more franchises during his last term.

Any public utility could be operated under a permit as well as under a franchise. When the street car company's franchise expires in 1939 whatever parts of the company's surface service that are useful could be continued under a permit granted by the city. And if the city, after making its rapid transit program, should want the company to operate the great, new system, that, too, could be done under a permit. The practical difference between permits and franchises, from the standpoint of public interest and protection, boils down to this:

Under the permit the city is master, the utility servant, and the city fixes the fare and regulates the service. No power in the land can interfere with the exercise of that authority. When a franchise is granted, whether by the city or the State Commission, the utility gains a right, and the city loses control. The fares are fixed by the State Commission on the basis of a "reproduction new" valuation. The city has no more to say about rates or service than the man in the moon.

From the standpoint of the utility, or more particularly the promoters of financial schemes based on franchises, the difference is: Under the permit they may be confined to what is truly a reasonable return on the money actually invested, while under the franchise they are virtually guaranteed a return of 7 per cent or more, not on the money actually invested, but on a fanciful and much higher figure arrived at by the "reproduction new" theory.

The vital difference between franchises and permits, and the admission that the advocates of the "terminable permits" bill knew grants issued under it would be in fact franchises, while deluding the public into the belief they would be only permits, was developed by Gov. Caulfield at the hearing on the bill. Gov. Caulfield: " . . . The city's Board of Public Service, as I understand, has the right to grant permits."

Mr. Burkham (attorney for the People's Motorbus Co.): "But no franchises."

Gov. Caulfield: "Has it not been your contention that this (terminable permit—Ed.) is not a FRANCHISE but only a PERMIT?"

Mr. Burkham: "I think, frankly, the right as granted is essentially a franchise right, revocable, it is true, but in the nature of a franchise. The Board of Public Service right is entirely different."

Since everybody has an automobile we have a great many accidents resulting from the hot colliding with the polloi.

PROPAGANDA IN THE SCHOOLS.

The National Education Association, in session at Atlanta, very properly protests against propaganda in the public schools.

Says a report by one of its committees: "The propaganda is knocking at the school door, and in some instances he has already been admitted. There is nothing to indicate that he will overlook the schools in the future. . . . The purpose of propaganda is to teach children what to think, whereas the purpose of education is to teach them how to think. This is a significant issue for school authorities because of the imperative need for an adult citizenry capable of protecting itself from all sorts of propaganda. The welfare of children is the primary function of the public schools. It is the only legitimate basis for acceptance or rejection of material offered for school use."

The association has adopted a code of ethics which declares: 1. The schoolroom is not the proper theater for religious, political or personal propaganda. 2. The teacher should not permit educational work to be used for partisan politics, personal gain, or selfish propaganda. 3. The teacher should not tutor pupils in his class for pay. 4. The teacher should insist upon a salary scale suitable to his place in society. 5. The teacher should not act as agent or accept royalties.

Maybe Jake Newman can reorganize the Cardinals.

ality, a commission or other reward for books or supplies in the selection of which he can exercise an influence.

That is a sound position for education to take, and we hope to see the public schools of the United States maintain it. Meanwhile, we congratulate the National Education Association.

THE TREASURY REPORT.

How Jacques Necker, Louis XVI's Minister of Finance, would have revelled in Secretary Mellon's job! Poor old Necker was asked to transform pre-revolutionary France from bankruptcy to affluence and, being only a financier and not a magician, he failed. Mr. Mellon's situation is the ideal one, dreamed of throughout the ages by ministers of finance, where income habitually exceeds outgo, regardless of increased expenditures and decreased taxes. He is thus enabled to make the most pleasant reports to the American people.

Cautious statisticians of the Treasury Department had estimated a surplus of $37,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year just closed. They took into account America's prosperity, seemingly ever on the increase, but they charged off $45,000,000, loss due to repeal of the automobile excise tax, and $12,000,000 loss because of increased exemptions in the amusement tax. They also charged off a sum representing the reduction of the corporation tax from 13.5 to 12 per cent. Yet when the receipts were totaled, it became evident that the actual surplus was $155,000,000, $148,000,000 more than the estimate.

The surplus is largely attributable to an increase of $220,000,000 in receipts from the individual income tax, which the Treasury believes arose from profits taken in the stock market. An increase of $16,000,000 in stamp taxes is traced to the same source. A rise of $33,000,000 in customs duty receipts is said to be a customary phenomenon when a new—and higher—tariff bill is in process of formation. We can all understand the increase of $40,000,000 in tobacco taxes.

Already $124,000,000 of the surplus has been applied to reduction of the public debt. The remainder will also be used for that purpose. On July 1 the public debt amounted to $16,931,000,000 as against $17,694,000,000 on July 1, 1928. It is still an enormous sum, but there is much comfort in the fact that it has been reduced since 1919 some $5,000,000,000. In that year the interest alone on the debt of $25,234,000,000 amounted to more than a billion dollars. This interest bill was cut out to $673,000,000 in the fiscal year just closed, a reduction of some $325,000,000 under 1919 and a saving of $54,000,000 since the preceding fiscal year.

It should be borne in mind that the $185,000,000 surplus was accumulated despite unusual demands upon the Treasury such as for flood relief ($30,000,000); increased postal expenditures ($105,000,000); civil service retirement fund ($20,000,000), and so on. As Jacques Necker would say in wonderment to Andrew Mellon, "Lord, how the money rolls in!"

TENNESSEE'S HOME BREW TAX.

The first month's revenue from a tax levied on malt extract in Tennessee has yielded the State some $15,000.

This is the tax which it is estimated would yield Missouri $1,000,000 annually. Missouri is one of the major producing states in the modern industry of malt for making home brew. Such a tax in Tennessee is yielding to that State approximately one-fifth of what it would have yielded in Missouri. The Missouri Legislature flirted with the idea, but eventually turned it down. It reasoned that to levy such a tax would be to recognize an industry that, under the law, is not supposed to exist. That is, the sons of our own State were pitched by this proposal into the difficult field which distinguishes between the real and the unreal, the material and the immaterial, the actual and the hypothetical. There was nobody around like Socrates, Zeno, Bishop Cannon, or Senator Gould of Maine, to guide the Legislature in such a dilemma, so it weakly gave up and defeated the bill. Tennessee has proved harder. As a matter of fact, Tennessee, decorated as she is with the battlefields of another great domestic issue, is one of the testing grounds of the republic.

FAILURE OF CHICAGO'S JAY-WALKING LAW.
Chicago's jay-walking law has gone on the rocks for the simple reason that the people do not want it. They prefer to rely upon their own craft and ingenuity in escaping the perils of the motor age, just as their Neanderthal ancestors did in evading the dinosaur and jabberwock while threading their way through the primeval jungle. After a few half-hearted efforts to enforce it, the Chicago police have given up, bowing to the will of the people.

It appears that the St. Louis Board of Aldermen acted too hastily in passing a jay-walking ordinance for St. Louis. Designed particularly for the protection of pedestrians in the downtown section, research shows that a fatal accident there is practically unknown. Unless we are very different from Chicagoans, the St. Louis ordinance will die of inanition after its 90 days of trial.

LINDBERGH AND THE AIRPORT.

With the straightforwardness that is his outstanding characteristic, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh correctly diagnosed the trouble at Lambert-St. Louis Field Sunday before he took off for Kansas City. Politely—so as to rub no fur the wrong way now the field has become involved in politics—but nevertheless directly, Col. Lindbergh pointed out that there have been too many plans and too little action. An elaborate system of runways is proposed. "Very good," said the Colonel, "but it will be years before they are complete. In the meantime, in order to succeed, Lambert Field must be available for use." Unless runways are built immediately, for use next winter, large passenger planes now stopping at the field will be obliged to seek new landing places in the late fall. Lambert Field becomes too muddy. In cold weather the frozen runways are too deep to permit the landing of big ships.

"Therefore," he continued, "why not build two 2000-foot runways at once. Let one of them run from southwest to northeast and the other from northwest to southeast. They will work in excellently with the elaborate system which will be part of the final improvements at the field, and they will give the immediate landing facilities necessary for the continued successful existence of the field."

Col. Lindbergh's proposal is sound. Lambert Field could profitably exchange a dozen planners for a doer or two.

THE NEGATION OF CITIZENSHIP.
From the New York Herald Tribune.

THERE is no conceivable danger in admitting to citizenship one doctor of divinity of the high type of Dr. Macintosh. But if the principle of his application were upheld, who could come in under it? That is the critical question.

Thus presented, we do not see how there can be serious question of the correctness of Judge Barrow's ruling. Dr. Macintosh's position is nothing more or less than a challenge of the whole Anglo-Saxon principle of majority rule. If his stand were to prevail generally, every citizen would have the right to decide for himself whether to obey or disobey any command of his government, especially those commands touching its life and death. Nations could not endure if their citizens generally took this position and were protected in it.

The exception honoree in this country's draft law—and generally respected by other nations—is that of religious sects whose faith prohibits the bearing of arms. It is to be noted that Dr. Macintosh did not attempt to bring himself within this exception to the general rule. He did not even profess a general unwillingness to fight. He simply sought to reserve the right to set his individual judgment against that of his countrymen with respect to the justice of a particular war.

THE PUBLIC BE DIMED.

What Is U. S. Citizenship?

The refusal of the courts to admit Madame Rosika Schwimmer and Dr. Douglas C. Macintosh to citizenship, because of their mental reservations on bearing arms in the time of war, has caused a sharp clash of opinion in the U. S. press.

THE STATE AND THE INDIVIDUAL.

From the Chicago Tribune.

THE Judge of the Naturalization Court at New Haven, Conn., has decided that Prof. Douglas C. Macintosh of the Yale divinity school is not qualified for citizenship. Prof. Macintosh was born in Canada. In answer to questions he said that he would be willing to bear arms if he thought the cause a just one. That limitation of his submission, in the opinion of the Court, disqualified him. This follows the decision of the Supreme Court given in denying the application of Mrs. Schwimmer.

As also in her case the chances of Mr. Macintosh ever being called on to take up arms at the command of the country in which he sought citizenship were so remote as to be out of the picture. The test was as to his ideas of citizenship and he maintained the right of private judgment and conscience. It isn't the easiest thing in the world to maintain the balance between private rights and state necessities. That makes most of the controversies in the modern state.

There are a good many compromises between the absolute authority of the state and the private judgment of the individual and often in periods not enough is yielded to the latter to maintain a healthy liberty, but in certain emergencies the former cannot yield to private opinion and continue to exist. A citizen is supposed to be so constituted that his decisions cannot violate the prevailing opinion of the citizenship. If it does the remedy is supposed to be in political action. Outside of that the state is supposed to get along when its decisions have been properly and lawfully formed.

When an applicant for citizenship makes reservations which are not granted the native born he is not eligible in theory even if in fact he would be a desirable and useful citizen.

It is to be noted that Dr. Macintosh did not attempt to bring himself within this exception to the general rule. He did not even profess a general unwillingness to fight. He simply sought to reserve the right to set his individual judgment against that of his countrymen with respect to the justice of a particular war.

The latitude normally granted a citizen in time of war is large. If it is a minor contest, such as to involve no need of the draft, he can volunteer or not, as he chooses. But if the test is one of national life or death, so that the whole force of the national effort is required, it is impossible to bend national tests to minority views—impossible, that is, and have nations survive.

Dr. Macintosh would be in the United States, but not of it. He would claim the benefits of citizenship while refusing to surrender his will to a majority decision in the case of national life and death. Such a position is a negation of citizenship, and it's general acceptance would amount to national suicide.

THE PERILS OF HONESTY.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

DR. DOUGLAS CLYDE MACINTOSH, a teacher of theology in the Yale divinity school, is an honest man. He was a chaplain in the late war and he came back from that experience somewhat dubious as to wars in general.

He is a Canadian by birth, but recently he applied for United States citizenship. Yesterday, in the course of his examination, he was asked whether he would be willing to take up arms in defense of this country. This question stumped Dr. Macintosh. He finally answered, however, that he would take up arms if the war were a just one, but he reserved the right to decide for himself the justice or injustice of the particular war.

Whereupon the examining Judge decided that Dr. Macintosh was ineligible for citizenship.

A JUDGE-MADE THEORY.

From the New York World.

ACCORDING to Judge Burrows, a citizen, be he native-born or naturalized, loses all right of individual judgment and action the moment Congress declares that a state of war exists. From that moment on every citizen is at the absolute disposition of the President as absolutely as if he were a private soldier at the front.

The absoluteness of this doctrine is as naive as it is intolerable. The majority of a war in which any great power engages are not life and death struggles in which the existence is at stake but little wars of policy, interest or accident. It is absurd to lay down a rule which makes it the absolute obligation of the citizen to give unqualified support to every war. Such a rule would condemn Calhoun and Lincoln, who opposed the Mexican War.

In view of the fact that conscription is not our permanent policy, it would seem to be going pretty far for Judges to deal with applicants for citizenship as if conscription was our permanent policy.

WASHINGTON, July 2, 1929.

IT CANNOT be denied that the women members of Congress have more difficult time of it while in Washington than do their male colleagues. The duties of both, in so far as the role of representing their constituents, the nation's lawmaking body is concerned, are very nearly equal. But one is required to go through the maze of Washington's politico-social games aided—there's a difference.

The gentleman of Congress must it. And there is not one of the members of the House but who will tell you that doing double duty is most taxing.

A representative, no matter how many calls they are expected to make. As they must at least go through the motions of representing their constituents, they had to send last night when "Congress" to one of Mrs. Hoover's Congressional parties because an important roll call was impending.

There is nothing for them to do except entertain or be entertained at dinner. In one of them compromise with society in a manner.

But even this does not take care of the calls they are expected to make. As they must at least go through the motions of representing their constituents, they had to send last night when "Congress" to one of Mrs. Hoover's Congressional parties because an important roll call was impending.

THE three Ruths—Representatives.

Hanna McCormick, Ruth Bryan Owen and Ruth Baker Pratt — hit upon the plan. They solved their problem by gathering sending out an emissary to locate their cars wherever calls from women Representatives were expected.

Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield is the only one of the group who has no social duties to complicate matters for her. Arkansas Representative still is in mourning for the death of her husband when she succeeded.

But the three Ruths, with Representatives Florence F. Kahn, Edith Norton, Rogers, Katherine Langley and Mary Norton, have no escape.

Of these, and despite the fact she is one of the best of the group, Mrs. McCormick still finds time for one of the well-chosen dinner parties for which Hanna's daughter long has been famous. She has entertained once for the Attorney-General and Mrs. William Mitchell. At another time she was hostess to the Secretary of Commerce and Robert P. Lamont.

KNIFE COOKERY.

James Austin Wilder, (Lutton, NE of the most famous cook books for women begins with a meticulous definition of the "cookstove" couched in the "cookstove" language. Mr. James Wilder, who has prepared above listed cook book for boys and young hearts, could not in the nature of things, begin work in a manner so impressive as scientific for the cookery which he is concerned in. There are almost nothing that every man would regard as demands a definition. There are, however, a few, such as kettles, skillets, pans, and so on. The book is not a jack-knife, but a body—even a Boston boy would not be able to get on without a jack-knife could be dispensed with under the pressure of necessity.

Jack-knife cookery, in Mr. Wilder's sense of the term, signifies a sort of culinary ingenuity which a clever boy might resort to when he is alone in a kitchen with nothing whatever in which to cook it. However, the book is not a jack-knife, but a body—even a Boston boy would not be able to get on without a jack-knife could be dispensed with under the pressure of necessity.

Less practical boys—those who have nearly all the time, with a bit of imagination, a desert island and a few tools, would find the book almost anywhere outside of a city. In fact, on any Sunday summer a motorist passes many picnic parties parked on desert islands in the woods along the road. In the language of the psychologist, they are, what we know it or not, enjoying the sensation that comes of falling upon the "primitive" new.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE.
July 2.—Wheat closed 1½c to 2½c higher, and corn mixed. Both Liverpool and Buenos Aires ranged up sharply and formed tidings of North American wheat picked up.

A sharp advance at Liverpool where prices closed 3½ to 4½c higher, was followed by London, which advanced most profitably. Winnipeg which was closed yesterday, was up 3½c after lunch. Comment on moisture situation on both sides of border also seemed assumed as factors. The first price estimates on wheat crop were not as radical as those on corn. To fear corn harvest was well up early on September but not before.

Wheat wharf opened at $1.15 Mid West, 1½c lower than last week's closing. Sept. corn 93¢ and December corn 85½¢. Live stock—Cattle—Chicago receipts 10,000 head compared with 91,000 on same date last year. July 25,000 head, and 25,000 head, included 32¢ per head. Receipts from Texas 10,000 head.

which were 128,200 bushels, compared with 117,600 a week ago and 103,600 a year ago, included 74 cars local and 3 through. Oats receipts, which were 57,200 bushels, compared with 30,600 a week ago and 4000 a year ago, included 18 cars local and 8 through. Hay receipts were 11 cars local and 3 through.

For the Love of a Lady

by Jeffery Farnol

SYNOPSIS: Through a window at night, beautiful Helen D'Arcy enters the life of Sir Richard Guyford, young and handsome. Bitterly she avails him for low villainy committed, Richard later learns, by his cousin, Julian, using Richard's name. In furious revenge, he breaks a horse-ship on cousin Julian, who then challenges him to a duel. Tossing feverishly on his bed, the rogue, Julian, discusses with Viscount Brocklehurst their plot to gain the D'Arcy fortune by forcing Helen into marriage with the Viscount. Julian, fearing treachery by his friends, places a certain revealing note in the barrel of a pistol—a preparation for untimely death.

CHAPTER EIGHT. ANOTHER PLOTTER.

TARING at the ceiling with fever-redened eyes, Julian remained until aroused by a knock at the door. Captain Despard entered, a tall, commanding figure whose tripperies of laces, velvets and embroidery seemed but to accentuate his resolute strength.

"Vastly fine, George!" nodded the invalid. "Thou'rt a comely creature. 'Tis to be hoped madam appreciates thee duly, George, even unto matrimony."

"Madam?" murmured the captain, lifting an eyebrow.

"Ay—She, George, with a capital S! Madam Croesus, my lady Midas, may she to thee and matrimony incline, for you have determined to become a Benedict at last, eh? And I heartily commend you therefore!"

"Ah, and pray why, Julian?"

"Because, whereas Brocklehurst is foredoomed to failure, thou'rt almost as certain to succeed, and I desire to possess a friend so superlatively wealthy as the D'Arcy's spouse will be."

"To—possess him, Julian?"

"Precisely, George!" sighed the invalid, and for a tense moment each watched the other.

The captain closed his snuffbox gently.

"Friendship," said he, "friendship, more especially such as yours, Julian, is a jewel—of price, it seems?"

"And yet," said the captain, "given certain circumstances, friendship—even such as yours, might come to a determination, and—die?"

"My dear George," Julian sighed reproachfully, "friendship such as mine shall never end but with my life."

"Your life, Julian?"

"My life?" Julian laughed softly and stared up at the bed-tester again. "But, George," said he, "I have made particular provision, should Death leap on me sudden and unannounced—a statement documentary, George, that shall to the world declare the wherefore and precise reason for such friendship as this of mine for thee."

"Referring to your duel," said the captain suddenly; "art so sure, so confident of the outcome?"

"'Tis beyond all doubt, George. 'Twill be joy to feel Dick writhe upon my steel. And yet—the public ignominy of the hangman's noose—why, this was sweeter!"

Captain Despard surveyed the speaker with wondering interest. "Heaven refuse me!" he murmured.

He was submitted to her for analysis for defects before being used.

mured, "but I discover in you at times, Julian, a sublimity that awes the mere human."

"My dear George, such appreciation is infinitely flattering. And speaking of yourself brings me to poor Tom Allinson, who was found dead outside Richard's lodgings—his sudden demise.

Could we not resurrect him to contrive new evidence, and damn our Richard to the gallows? Advise me, friend George."

THE black Horse was a low-browed, tumble-down little ale house across the wide green from the Guyford Arms.

On weather-worn bench before this tavern Sir Richard sprawled with a mug of ale at his elbow, though the day was so young that dew sparkled in the grass. Sir Richard's sullen gaze was fixed on vacancy and, being lost thus in gloomy reverie, he whistled softly and dolefully between white teeth.

At last he stirred and had grasped the half-emptied tankard on the table before him when my lady Helen came riding joyously across the green. Now beholding her thus suddenly, he made her a profound obeisance with wide-armed flourish of slopping ale mug.

"Ma'am, quoth he, 'all hail!'"

"How, sir, are you so shamefully fuddled—thus early in the day?"

"Hardly so, yet, ma'm. Howbeit, give me but time and—"

"Odious!" she exclaimed. "You look sufficiently sordid and dissolute, sir. I bid you good-bye!" and, wheeling her horse, she cantered away.

Suddenly he heard a shrill scream and, glancing up, had the vision of a small, flying shape, felt his booted leg clasped by a panting, sobbing creature. The child gasped and sobbed distressfully, staring up at him in passionate appeal.

"Why, how now," said he, stroking back her long, disordered curls; "who are you?"

"Shuri Camlo—and they wants to beat me!" she gasped; "them yonder." And she pointed wildly towards two men hurrying across the green, but who now halted, staring at Sir Richard.

BUT as they stared thus hesitant, a horseman appeared, a young and particularly sharp-looking man, he frowned at his two men, he glanced at Sir Richard, remarking his shabby attire, the fact that he wore no sword to the surprise of officers, they were informed that Dr. Clark was best fitted for the job.

Dr. Clark is a graduate of Syracuse University and holder of two degrees from Tech.

MEDITATIONS —OF A— MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE MODERN LOVERS

Man's greatest charm for woman is his faculty for remaining just a little boy—at heart—usually, a "bad little boy," who has to be mothered all his life.

There was a time when a he-man would have fought the whole class, single-handed, before he would have let them elect him "Class Beauty" in a college contest.

Jealousy is a very effete emotion now that a man starts right in by offering you merely a co-operative interest in his affections and a limited parking time in his heart.

Neither age nor avoirdupois can stifle a woman's yearning to be called "Cutie"—and no amount of brains ever killed her desire to be cuddled.

When a man begins telling you of his love these days, it sounds less like a plea than as though he were trying to sell you something at a great big, wonderful bargain.

Red hair is a "gift of the gods," says a British critic. Sometimes it is—and sometimes it comes from the beauty parlors, and then it's no GIFT!

Just about the time when men get through being shocked at one style of woman's clothes, the fashions change, and it takes them nearly a whole week to catch their breath and begin finding fault with her all over again.

When a man reaches the age where he can no longer feel the ecstasy and enchantment of love, he begins trying to convince the world that it is nothing but a sex impulse, and thus dates himself as a sex-agenarian.

When a woman has been fooled by a lot of them, she can look at a window full of melons or a ballroom full of men without a glimmer of curiosity.

Tailored Sheer Fabrics

A PLEASING phase in the evolution of modern fashion is the transposition of materials and colors from their accustomed place to others less usual.

Sheer fabrics, such as lace, chiffons and organdy, instead of always being designed into frocks of dressy intent, now are given the tailored air. When handled in this manner they have a new look that is distinctly chic. Lucille Paray shows a tailored lace dress box-plaited in front and back and finished with a tailored yoke.

The tailored chiffons offer a most wearable type for warm weather togs, being correct for more occasions than the extremely dressy sort of frock.

Former Mill Girl Achieves Success

WHEN fate threw obstacles in the path of Mrs. Claudia Le Blanc Cushman of Cambridge, Mass., she used them as a stairway to climb to a higher place in life.

At the time of a fire in Quebec some years ago her name was Claudia Le Blanc—and the flames had left the Le Blanc penniless. So she came to take up life in the United States as a French-speaking mill girl in one of the factories of Lowell, Mass.

The conclusion that working in a mill held no rosy future for her was not long in dawning upon the girl. She was only 19 years old when she started a bank president by telling him she wanted to borrow $20,000 to build a block of new homes. She had no security.

But she had made a study of just what she wanted to do with that money. She knew the location, the type of home, the costs, the possibilities of sale, the approximate profit. She had thought of everything. She got the loan and the venture was a complete success.

As she returned her profits for further building ventures more successes followed and she became a large taxpayer in Lowell, Fall River and other cities with considerable French populations.

In her success she remembered her former co-workers, and her charity. During a great textile strike in Fall River she earned her the workers' gratitude.

But Mrs. Cushman was to demonstrate further her originality. She reversed custom by ending her successful business career and finishing her education at a fashionable seminary.

Now she is the wife of Lewis Cushman and of late she has interested herself in helping design large apartment houses that her husband has constructed. That she shows a woman's touch in her design.

Number of New High
ords in Market—As Auto Soars 44 1-4
to 375 Top.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 2.—Call money dropped from 12 to 6 per cent today as the mid-year credit market developed some irregularities
a result of heavy pre-holiday taking. Major activity, however, was again on the up-side, industrials superseding the market leaders.

Auburn Auto was the special individual feature, soaring points to a new high record of 375, which contrasts with year's low of 221.

U. S. Steel Common set a new high record for all time below 200 and then eased off for a net gain of 3 1/2. American Steel Common advanced 1 1/2 to 158 1/2. Radio, after a long period of relative inactivity, was suddenly bought in large lots, and ran up more points to 80 1/2, but part of the gain was lost on realizing.

Powder & Light and United Electric Light established highs at 146 and 155 on gains of 2 and 3 points, respectively.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank made no announce-as indicating no change.

Rails Turn Lower
With credit conditions
definitely easier tendency

evident in the railroad market today. The
New York Central and

Weekly Steel Trade Review
The steel trade review
continued to paint a ros-

try. The Iron Age reported that "the pig iron production in July 1929 was 2,255,000 tons a day, was the highest of any month
yet, being an increase of 122,745 tons over May."
Ingot output for the half of the year established a record for that period.

Commodity Prices
